New Texas Probe Labels Marshall Death 'Murder'

SWEET SMELL OF SUCCESS — Circleville merchchants today enjoyed the apparent "sweet smell of success" during the first annual "Sidewalk Sales" as hundreds of bargain hunters jammed the downtown area. Several persons commented the "Sidewalk Sale" should be referred to as the "Little Pumpkin Show" since crowds and stands on the sidewalks of the downtown area resemble the popular festival. (Staff Photo)

'Sidewalk Sales' Termed Success

Circleville's first "Sidewalk Sales" in history were termed a huge success today.

Streams of consumers flocked to the downtown area starting at about 9 a. m. The heavy flow of buying and viewing continued into the afternoon.

Most merchants on Court and Main Sts. filled their sidewalks with counters and racks chock full of attractive bargains. Clerks were on hand to handle any and all transactions and assist buyers where needed.

• • •

LEFKO commended George Fuhrman and his committee for setting up the operation and also voiced praise to the public for its resounding acceptance of the special sales extravaganza.

Lefko also reminded that much credit is due the 95 per cent of city merchants who participated wholeheartedly in the pdoject.

According to the retail chairman, today's outstanding exhibition almost insures a repeat "Sidewalk Sales" for the future.

Many participating consumers today labeled the outdoor promotion as a "Miniature Pumpkin Show." Sidewalks were lined with shoppers and the flow of traffic was heavy, too.

Wagon Train Journey Ends In Dismay

SEATTLE (AP)—The New Jersey wagon train wound up its cross-country trek to the World's Fair in dust and dismay Wednesday night.

Twenty miles from Seattle, and 3,500 miles from home, the party of 107, including 33 children, was shunted off the highway into the "Century City Campsite," which they had pictured as a place of comfort and pleasure.

Instead, they found a rutted and rocky road leading to a recently cleared patch littered with tree stumps and brush.

Said Wagon Master Henry Warnaar of Clifton, N.J.:

"We've made 13 stops and we've been treated royally all along the way. We expected to come into a very nice place. This is terrible."

The caravan had started from Salem, N.J., and visited other Salems on the way. Salem, Ohio, had been its first stop.

Some in the party, which traveled in 32 autos and trailers, pulled out immediately, intending to bypass Seattle and the fair and head for Canada. Many moved to a trailer site at nearby Auburn.

David S. Davies, executive director of the New Jersey Tercentenary Commission, eyed the campsite and wryly observed:

Parents Are Chided For Chaining Boy

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The parents of an 8-year-old boy who was found with his legs chained together have been given 30-day suspended jail sentences and told to take better care of their 17 children.

County Judge Bart Peak handed down the sentences Wednesday to William and Ruth Hayes.

Peak said Mrs. Hayes admitted she padlocked a heavy chain from a porch swing around the ankles of her son, Larry, on July 10 and left him at home while she visited a doctor. The boy was found by the father of a police officer, standing in the middle of a street.

"I did it to keep him out of trouble," Mrs. Hayes testified. The father denied any knowledge of the incident.

Accord Seen In Canadian Medical Fuss

SASKATOON, Sask. (AP)—Opposing sides in the controversy over Saskatchewan's compulsory medical care program are talking compromise. But obstacles remain and the strike of most of the province's doctors continued today.

The doctors dropped their demand that the Socialist government suspend the Medical Care Insurance Act before they would consider a settlement. But they remained firm in their demands for major changes in the act before returning to normal practice.

The government, however, linked modifications of the act to the doctors' return to their offices. until it moved to place the doctors on one key point by declaring it considers them free to practice outside the program.

The medical care program which went into effect July 1 covers everyone in the province not covered by a federal program. It is financed through direct assessments and general tax revenues. Doctors' fees are fixed.

Almost all the provinces' 700 doctors are refusing to practice under it, but about 200 are providing free medical care at 40 reference agency centers. The doctors contend the program will lead to government control of the medical profession. The program's supporters contend the doctors are worried only about their pocketbooks.

Urbana Jersey Milker Sets All-Time Record

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The American Jersey Cattle Club has announced that Dandy Mac Beacon Marilyn, owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Stinson of Urbana, completed the highest butterfat record in the club's 94-year history.

Her official record totaled 23,678 pounds of milk (nearly 12 tons) and 1,343 pounds of butterfat in one year, surpassing the previous high of 1,319 pounds of butterfat by a Jersey in Oregon 10 years ago.

Once Around Roundtown

BRIGHT - COLORED bonnets were high fashion today in downtown Circleville as clerks were outfitted for the old-fashioned "Sidewalk Sale" . . . The fad spread quickly as employes in the Clerk of Courts office at the courthouse rushed out and purchased similar hats for themselves to wear during the day.

BY THE looks of the predominately female crowd uptown today, the "Sidewalk Sale" is extremely popular with the fairer sex. It matters little if it is successful with the men, since the women control the pursestrings in America.

AFL-CIO Union Vote Slated at Pickaway Dairy

Employes of the Pickaway Dairy Co-op Association are scheduled to vote next Wednesday whether they want to be represented by a union, according to the National Labor Relations Board today.

The organized labor unit to be voted on, or against, is Local 379 of the AFL-CIO Dairy, Bakery and Food Workers Union.

An attempt to organize labor at the local dairy cooperative was made several years ago but failed.

According to the NLRB, 50 employes will vote in the issue.

Antimissile Nips Atlas in Flight

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first successful interception of an intercontinental ballistic missile by an Army Nike-Zeus antimissile was announced today by the Defense Department.

The intercept was made by a Zeus fired from Kwajalein Island in the central Pacific against an Atlas launched from California, 4,500 miles away.

The Defense Department said an earlier test, at an undisclosed time, was not a complete success.

Democrats Polled On Tax Cut Idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's aides are polling congressional Democrats on their attitude toward a possible immediate tax cut to cushion the economy.

Confirming that such a canvass is under way in the Senate, Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said in an interview the results thus far have been mixed.

Mansfield said he is certain Kennedy has made no decision on whether to request a reduction in levies. But he added the President obviously is interested in knowing in advance what reception he could expect if such a request were made.

"This late in the session, it would be a difficult thing to manage," Mansfield said.

Kennedy is said to be reluctant to acknowledge any such adverse trend in the economy as a tax reduction request would signal. Beyond that he is said to feel that if a request were made and rejected, the reaction could invite a recession that might otherwise be avoided.

As politically incredible as it may seem in an election year, Congress appears far from eager to vote a tax cut. There prevails at nearly all levels some apprehension about how the voters will react to continued high spending and a ballooning deficit.

Chairman Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., stands athwart the portal of the tax-handling Senate Finance Committee, determined to fight against any reduction which would further unbalance the budget.

While he may be somewhat more tractable, Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee remains to be convinced that a tax reduction is desirable at this time.

Moreover, Mills would be likely to lay down some conditions which would start the tax measure through Congress on an uncertain course.

For instance, Mills and his committee colleagues might insist that a withholding tax on interest and dividends be included in the bill to help make up for revenue losses. The House voted for this but Byrd's Senate committee knocked it out of a tax revision measure now before it.

In any event, a tax reduction would have to be made a temporary one if the administration later is to get the general overhaul of the revenue code it wants. Such an overhaul would need the sweetener of a permanent reduction to get anywhere.

Pentagon Junks Its 'Big Ear'

Huge Radio Telescope Declared Obsolete

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's biggest movable radio telescope has been declared obsolete even before it could take its first sounding in space.

In junking the project Wednesday the Pentagon cited zooming costs as well as rapid advances in space technology.

Since 1958, the government had spent $41.7 million of the $126.2 million voted by Congress for the research station at Sugar Grove, W. Va.

West Virginians, who planned to use "the big ear" as a tourist attraction during next year's centennial observance, kept a stiff upper lip.

The decision, said Gov. W. W. Barron, will "by no means" halt plans for a tourist project near the Pendleton County site in the state's eastern Panhandle.

The Pentagon action had been rumored for more than a year. Meanwhile, the construction progressed to the point where access roads were built in remote areas, completed.

The telescope, standing 70 feet high and weighing 50,000 tons, was to listen for signals from any life on other worlds.

Usable also as radar, the 600-foot, dish-like antenna was to be capable of mapping the surface of the moon, bounce signals off Mars and Jupiter and explore outer space in preparation for deep space probe experiments.

The Pentagon announcement said Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara decided to halt construction after an intensive study determined that the need for certain research "had been substantially reduced by major advances in science and technology."

Better ways have been found to do the work originally planned for the huge telescope, a Navy spokesman said. He added that security requirements prevented him from going into detail. The Navy had charge of the project.

U.S. GI Wounded By Red Vietnamese

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —An American crewman of a U.S. Army helicopter was wounded today by Communist ground fire 28 miles north of Saigon, military sources reported.

The helicopter, flying from Saigon to Ben Cat, was hit seven times by bullets but continued to the town on the fringe of the Communist-controlled D Zone.

The American, believed a sergeant, was struck in the arm but his wound reportedly was not serious. His name was not made known.

The helicopter was to participate in the second stage of "Operation Sunrise" in which government forces are trying to secure an area north of Ben Cat for resettling peasants into a fortified hamlet.

Mystery Case Tied to Estes Is Revived

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Department of Public Safety said today its investigation indicates the death of Henry Marshall near Franklin on June 3, 1961, was murder, not suicide. Marshall at the time was investigating Billie Sol Estes' cotton allotments

Marshall, a federal Agriculture Department official charged with policing acreage allotments was shot five times in the body with a bolt action 22-calibre rifle.

His death originally was ruled a suicide. The case was revived when it was learned publicly nearly a year later that he was investigating Estes.

Estes was called before a Franklin grand jury, but Atty. Gen. Will Wilson said he did not believe Estes knew anything about the shooting.

An autopsy made a year later showed he not only was shot five times but had a near-lethal intake of carbon monoxide gas and a blow on the head that was almost fatal.

The Department of Public Safety opinion was revealed in the release of a letter that Director of Public Safety Homer Garrison wrote to Texas Dist. Court Judge John M. Barron, Bryan.

"Investigators of the Texas Department of Public Safety have completed an intensive preliminary investigation of the circumstances surroundint gh mysterious death of Henry Marshall near Franklin, Tex., on June 3, 1961," said the letter.

"This investigation, conducted under the supervision of Texas Ranger Capt. Clint Peoples of Waco, has resulted in our conclusion that Mr. Marshall's death could not have been the result of suicide; therefore, this department's continuing investigation will be based upon the theory that he was murdered," Garrison said.

Much of the mystery of the revived Marshall case centered on the question of how he could have shot himself five times with the type of weapon used.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., head of the Senate Investigating subcommittee, said recently he believes that Marshall could not have shot himself.

The grand jury meeting at Franklin for nearly a month issued a report saying it could not overturn the suicide verdict issued originally by Justice of the Peace Lee Farmer, one of whose duties is that of coroner.

Dr. J. A. Jachimczyk, Houston pathologist who conducted the autopsy, said he believes the death was murder but could not rule out suicide.

All-Out Kennedy Campaign Assured

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any questions about President Kennedy's zest for stumping in Senate and House campaigns this year was blown apart by defeat of his medical care program.

Kennedy previously had made clear he would take to the road, and possibly to the television screen, in an effort to enlarge the Democrats' sometimes illusory margin in Congress. By implication, he made equally clear that he hoped to enlarge it with Democrats who could be relied on to support administration measures.

If his mind already was made up, the medical care plan's 52-48 vote loss in the Senate on Tuesday made him more determined than ever.

Aides say the President will not carry a political shotgun with him on the campaign expeditions. But he has scrutinized the roll calls carefully, not only on medical care but all the key bills—farm, tax, urban affairs department, debt limit, trade, standby public works authority, trade, aid to higher education, U.N. bonds, foreign aid.

This indicates the chief executive will be especially eager to knock off Republicans who have consistently opposed him. It also suggests he will be much more disposed to plump for faithful rather than contrary Democrats.

It does not suggest he will fail to endorse Democrats at large.

For example, he posed for campaign pictures at the White House Wednesday with 17 Democratic Senate candidates. Among the nine incumbent senators in the group were Sens. Carl Hayden of Arizona and Sam J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina who only 24 hours earlier had voted to kill the medical care program.

Kennedy's campaign schedule is slowly being worked out. Only one date—in Chicago in October—has been announced. Before making clearly political sorties, Kennedy plans one or more "nonpolitical" journeys. This means he may appear in an area where a battle looms but will not directly advocate a candidate.

Subsequent "political" tours are likely to take him into Pennsylvania, Connecticut, California, Michigan, Kentucky and possibly Oregon, Utah and South Dakota, among others.

Soblen's Aides Ready Appeal

6-Week London Stay Assured Convicted Spy

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Robert Soblen's attorneys plan to file an appeal today against a court decision unholding the British government's detention of the convicted Soviet spy until it can expel him from Britain.

A three-man high court rejected Wednesday the 61-year-old psychiatrist's plea for liberty, made in an attempt to escape a life term in the United States for passing U.S. secrets to the Russians.

However, the judges granted his petition to appeal their decision to a higher tribunal. This may take six weeks or more. In the meantime the government in effect is barred from shipping Soblen out of the country.

Rejection of his appeal would leave Soblen one chance to escape U.S. justice—his petition to the Home Office for asylum as a political refugee. Granting of asylum is considered unlikely.

If both the appeal and the asylum petition are denied, he will be turned over to El Al, the Israeli airline, which would return him to New York.

Soblen maneuvered his case into the British courts by slashing a wrist and his abdomen July 1 while aboard an Israeli airliner carrying him back to New York from Tel Aviv, Israel, where he had fled after jumping $100,000 bail.

When the airliner touched down at London, Soblen was rushed to a hospital for emergency treatment. But the Home Office maintained he was not given official permission to land and consequently could be detained until he was able to travel out of the country. The court agreed.

Prestige Tiff Is Resolved By Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three-month prestige battle between the Senate and House Appropriations Committee has ended—for this year.

Settlement terms announced Wednesday add up to a victory for the House. Until the end of this session its senior Appropriations Committee members will share the chairmanship of conference sessions on money bills.

All government departments have been operating under temporary spending authority while the feud raged. The truce clears the way for passage of regular appropriations bills needed to keep the government in business.

The Senate's demand to originate half of the money bills went down the drain. Retained was the Senate's earlier concession to hold the conferences in the old Supreme Court chamber near the center of the Capitol, instead of on the far side of the Senate wing.

Traditionally, senators have presided at all conferences.

The House committee, headed by Rep. Clarence Cannon, D-Mo., had challenged this procedure, demanding half the sessions be presided over by House members and half be held in the House wing.

Youth Injured In Bicycle, Truck Mishap

Tom Griffey, 13, son of Mrs. Herb Griffey, 465 Watt St., was seriously injured today in a mishap on Route 22, ½ mile West of Circleville.

Griffey was riding his bicycle west on Route 22. A truck belonging to the Marshall Implement Co. was going in the same direction hauling a farm tractor mower.

A nut holding the cutter bar of the mower in an upright position apparently worked lose, allowing the bar to drop, according to Pickaway County Sheriff Walton Spangler. The end of the cutter bar struck the Griffey on the left leg just below the knee, causing an extremely bad laceration and a possible fracture of the leg.

He was taken to Berger Hospital by a passing motorist and then transferred to University Hospital Columbus. Lieutenant Langstaff of the Plain City police department who witnessed the accident, applied emergency first aid to Griffey at the scene of the accident.

An unidentified youngster who was riding with Griffey stated that they saw the truck coming with the cutter bar down. He said that they both got as closely to the guard rail as possible. The end of the bar just missed him.

Deputy Sheriff Dixie Waters investigated the accident.

Body of Girl Is Found In Cleveland Automobile

CLEVELAND (AP) — Parma Heights police were investigating the death of a girl whose body was found early today in a unlocked car parked in Metropolitan Park.

The girl, about 19, was not identified immediately.

Police said the girl had been shot in the head and a rifle was across the body. She was sprawled in the rear seat of the car. A second rifle, this one disassembled, was in the front of the car.

Gen. Clay Is Optimistic Berlin War Avoidable, Unified Germany Coming

Editor's Note: Following is the conclusion of a two-part series based on an exclusive interview with Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

By SAUL PETT
AP Staff Writer

The man who broke the Stalin era blockade of Berlin warns that the Kremlin must understand and believe the West will resist with force if the Russians go too far in their drive to evict the Allies.

"Unless we make them understand where they are going to be met with resistance, one of these days they're going to go too far and we're going to have no choice but war," says Gen. Lucius D. Clay, President Kennedy's special representative to Berlin.

But Clay is optimistic that war can be prevented and that some day—he puts no date on it—there will be a reunified, free Germany.

Clay's views are set forth in an exhaustive question and answer exploration of the perennial Berlin crisis, once again pushed into the headlines by Premier Khrushchev's demands.

This is the second of two sections of the exclusive interview with The Associated Press.

Q. General, before you went over last September you said you thought there might be some room for give and take toward a Berlin solution. You made clear you felt this might be an area not involving our basic rights. Do you still feel that way?

A. I think there is room. If the pride of the regime running East Germany is so involved in policing the highways that they would insist on taking over this responsibility from the Soviet troops now doing it, then there is a possibility this could be made an international highway. If it could be set up under international police with complete freedom of movement on the highway, except as controlled by international police for both Allies and Germans, I would think this would be a trade we could well accept.

Q. Has this area been explored?

A. This is one of the areas which we have been exploring, I am sure, with our allies. It has not yet been explored with the Soviet government because the talks have not progressed to that degree.

Q. Is the West prepared to react instantaneously to any new Soviet aggressive move?

A. The machinery to get prompt Allied reaction has been greatly improved. And for a great many contingencies there could be and would be instant reaction. There are still fields in which the contingency planning does not cover immediate action in Berlin. These are in the cases which are so close to the instance which would cause war as to require perhaps a period of pause and consideration before instant action. But I would say that by and large the ability of the Allies to react in Berlin is better now than it has been for many years. I would think that if there were any real tampering with the movement of goods to and from Berlin and of Germans to and from Berlin, that before we use a physical means we would resort to economic blockades rather than aggressive action. The intensity of what we would do would of course depend somewhat on the intensity of what they did. But I think you can appreciate the fact if the Allies wanted to respond to a blockade of Berlin with a massive blockade of the Communist countries it could be a very effective and tremendous tool.

The Pentagon action had been rumored for more than a year. Meanwhile, the construction progressed to the point where access roads were built in remote areas, completed.

The telescope, standing 70 feet high and weighing 50,000 tons, was to listen for signals from any life on other worlds.

Usable also as radar, the 600-foot, dish-like antenna was to be capable of mapping the surface of the moon, bounce signals off Mars and Jupiter and explore outer space in preparation for deep space probe experiments.

The Pentagon announcement said Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara decided to halt construction after an intensive study determined that the need for certain research "had been substantially reduced by major advances in science and technology."

Better ways have been found to do the work originally planned for the huge telescope, a Navy spokesman said. He added that security requirements prevented him from going into detail. The Navy had charge of the project.

U.S. GI Wounded By Red Vietnamese

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) —An American crewman of a U.S. Army helicopter was wounded today by Communist ground fire 28 miles north of Saigon, military sources reported.

The helicopter, flying from Saigon to Ben Cat, was hit seven times by bullets but continued to the town on the fringe of the Communist-controlled D Zone.

The American, believed a sergeant, was struck in the arm but his wound reportedly was not serious. His name was not made known.

The helicopter was to participate in the second stage of "Operation Sunrise" in which government forces are trying to secure an area north of Ben Cat for resettling peasants into a fortified hamlet.

Mystery Case Tied to Estes Is Revived

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Department of Public Safety said today its investigation indicates the death of Henry Marshall near Franklin on June 3, 1961, was murder, not suicide. Marshall at the time was investigating Billie Sol Estes' cotton allotments

Marshall, a federal Agriculture Department official charged with policing acreage allotments was shot five times in the body with a bolt action 22-calibre rifle.

His death originally was ruled a suicide. The case was revived when it was learned publicly nearly a year later that he was investigating Estes.

Estes was called before a Franklin grand jury, but Atty. Gen. Will Wilson said he did not believe Estes knew anything about the shooting.

An autopsy made a year later showed he not only was shot five times but had a near-lethal intake of carbon monoxide gas and a blow on the head that was almost fatal.

The Department of Public Safety opinion was revealed in the release of a letter that Director of Public Safety Homer Garrison wrote to Texas Dist. Court Judge John M. Barron, Bryan.

"Investigators of the Texas Department of Public Safety have completed an intensive preliminary investigation of the circumstances surroundint gh mysterious death of Henry Marshall near Franklin, Tex., on June 3, 1961," said the letter.

"This investigation, conducted under the supervision of Texas Ranger Capt. Clint Peoples of Waco, has resulted in our conclusion that Mr. Marshall's death could not have been the result of suicide; therefore, this department's continuing investigation will be based upon the theory that he was murdered," Garrison said.

Much of the mystery of the revived Marshall case centered on the question of how he could have shot himself five times with the type of weapon used.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., head of the Senate Investigating subcommittee, said recently he believes that Marshall could not have shot himself.

The grand jury meeting at Franklin for nearly a month issued a report saying it could not overturn the suicide verdict issued originally by Justice of the Peace Lee Farmer, one of whose duties is that of coroner.

Dr. J. A. Jachimczyk, Houston pathologist who conducted the autopsy, said he believes the death was murder but could not rule out suicide.

All-Out Kennedy Campaign Assured

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any questions about President Kennedy's zest for stumping in Senate and House campaigns this year was blown apart by defeat of his medical care program.

Kennedy previously had made clear he would take to the road, and possibly to the television screen, in an effort to enlarge the Democrats' sometimes illusory margin in Congress. By implication, he made equally clear that he hoped to enlarge it with Democrats who could be relied on to support administration measures.

If his mind already was made up, the medical care plan's 52-48 vote loss in the Senate on Tuesday made him more determined than ever.

Aides say the President will not carry a political shotgun with him on the campaign expeditions. But he has scrutinized the roll calls carefully, not only on medical care but all the key bills—farm, tax, urban affairs department, debt limit, trade, standby public works authority, trade, aid to higher education, U.N. bonds, foreign aid.

This indicates the chief executive will be especially eager to knock off Republicans who have consistently opposed him. It also suggests he will be much more disposed to plump for faithful rather than contrary Democrats.

It does not suggest he will fail to endorse Democrats at large.

For example, he posed for campaign pictures at the White House Wednesday with 17 Democratic Senate candidates. Among the nine incumbent senators in the group were Sens. Carl Hayden of Arizona and Sam J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina who only 24 hours earlier had voted to kill the medical care program.

Kennedy's campaign schedule is slowly being worked out. Only one date—in Chicago in October—has been announced. Before making clearly political sorties, Kennedy plans one or more "nonpolitical" journeys. This means he may appear in an area where a battle looms but will not directly advocate a candidate.

Subsequent "political" tours are likely to take him into Pennsylvania, Connecticut, California, Michigan, Kentucky and possibly Oregon, Utah and South Dakota, among others.

Soblen's Aides Ready Appeal

6-Week London Stay Assured Convicted Spy

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Robert Soblen's attorneys plan to file an appeal today against a court decision unholding the British government's detention of the convicted Soviet spy until it can expel him from Britain.

A three-man high court rejected Wednesday the 61-year-old psychiatrist's plea for liberty, made in an attempt to escape a life term in the United States for passing U.S. secrets to the Russians.

However, the judges granted his petition to appeal their decision to a higher tribunal. This may take six weeks or more. In the meantime the government in effect is barred from shipping Soblen out of the country.

Rejection of his appeal would leave Soblen one chance to escape U.S. justice—his petition to the Home Office for asylum as a political refugee. Granting of asylum is considered unlikely.

If both the appeal and the asylum petition are denied, he will be turned over to El Al, the Israeli airline, which would return him to New York.

Soblen maneuvered his case into the British courts by slashing a wrist and his abdomen July 1 while aboard an Israeli airliner carrying him back to New York from Tel Aviv, Israel, where he had fled after jumping $100,000 bail.

When the airliner touched down at London, Soblen was rushed to a hospital for emergency treatment. But the Home Office maintained he was not given official permission to land and consequently could be detained until he was able to travel out of the country. The court agreed.

Prestige Tiff Is Resolved By Solons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three-month prestige battle between the Senate and House Appropriations Committee has ended —for this year.

Settlement terms announced Wednesday add up to a victory for the House. Until the end of this session its senior Appropriations Committee members will share the chairmanship of conference sessions on money bills.

All government departments have been operating under temporary spending authority while the feud raged. The truce clears the way for passage of regular appropriations bills needed to keep the government in business.

The Senate's demand to originate half of the money bills went down the drain. Retained was the Senate's earlier concession to hold the conferences in the old Supreme Court chamber near the center of the Capitol, instead of on the far side of the Senate wing.

Traditionally, senators have presided at all conferences.

The House committee, headed by Rep. Clarence Cannon, D-Mo., had challenged this procedure, demanding half the sessions be presided over by House members and half be held in the House wing.

Youth Injured In Bicycle, Truck Mishap

Tom Griffey, 13, son of Mrs. Herb Griffey, 465 Watt St., was seriously injured today in a mishap on Route 22, ½ mile West of Circleville.

Griffey was riding his bicycle west on Route 22. A truck belonging to the Marshall Implement Co. was going in the same direction hauling a farm tractor mower.

A nut holding the cutter bar of the mower in an upright position apparently worked lose, allowing the bar to drop, according to Pickaway County Sheriff Walton Spangler. The end of the cutter bar struck the Griffey on the left leg just below the knee, causing an extremely bad laceration and a possible fracture of the leg.

He was taken to Berger Hospital by a passing motorist and then transferred to University Hospital Columbus. Lieutenant Langstaff of the Plain City police department who witnessed the accident, applied emergency first aid to Griffey at the scene of the accident.

An unidentified youngster who was riding with Griffey stated that they saw the truck coming with the cutter bar down. He said that they both got as closely to the guard rail as possible. The end of the bar just missed him.

Deputy Sheriff Dixie Waters investigated the accident.

Body of Girl Is Found In Cleveland Automobile

CLEVELAND (AP) — Parma Heights police were investigating the death of a girl whose body was found early today in a convertible car parked in Metropolitan Park.

The girl, about 19, was not identified immediately.

Police said the girl had been shot in the head and a rifle was across the body, which was sprawled in the rear seat of the car. A second rifle, this one disassembled, was in the front of the car.

Gen. Clay Is Optimistic Berlin War Avoidable, Unified Germany Coming

Editor's Note: Following is the conclusion of a two-part series based on an exclusive interview with Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

By SAUL PETT
AP Staff Writer

The man who broke the Stalin era blockade of Berlin warns that the Kremlin must understand and believe the West will resist with force if the Russians go too far in their drive to evict the Allies.

"Unless we make them understand where they are going to be met with resistance, one of these days they're going to go too far and we're going to have no choice but war," says Gen. Lucius D. Clay, President Kennedy's special representative to Berlin.

But Clay is optimistic that war can be prevented and that some day—he puts no date on it—there will be a reunified, free Germany.

Clay's views are set forth in an exhaustive question and answer exploration of the perennial Berlin crisis, once again pushed into the headlines by Premier Khrushchev's demands.

This is the second of two sections of the exclusive interview with The Associated Press.

Q. General, before you went over last September you said you thought there might be some room for give and take toward a Berlin solution. You made clear you felt this might be an area not involving our basic rights. Do you still feel that way?

A. I think there is room. If the pride of the regime running East Germany is so involved in policing the highways that they would insist on taking over this responsibility from the Soviet troops now doing it, then there is a possibility this could be made an international highway. If it could be set up under international police with complete freedom of movement on the highway, except as controlled by international police for both Allies and Germans, I would think this would be a trade we could well accept.

Q. Has this area been explored?

A. This is one of the areas which we have been exploring, I am sure, with our allies. It has not yet been explored with the Soviet government because the talks have not progressed to that degree.

Q. Is the West prepared to react instantaneously to any new Soviet aggressive move?

A. The machinery to get prompt Allied reaction has been greatly improved. And for a great many contingencies there could be and would be instant reaction. There are still fields in which the contingency planning does not cover immediate action in Berlin. These are in the cases which are so close to the instance which would cause war as to require perhaps a period of pause and consideration before instant action. But I would say that by and large the ability of the Allies to react in Berlin is better now than it has been for many years. I would think that if there were any real tampering with the movement of goods to and from Berlin and of Germans to and from Berlin, that before we use a physical means we would resort to economic blockades rather than aggressive action. The intensity of what we would do would of course depend somewhat on the intensity of what they did. But I think you can appreciate the fact if the Allies wanted to respond to a blockade of Berlin with a massive blockade of the Communist countries it could be a very effective and tremendous tool.

Ike Going Abroad To Preach America's Desire for Peace

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said in a shipboard interview yesterday that he would carry abroad a message that the Unted States wants peace, but will not be pushed around.

He talked with newsmen as he and his wife and two grandchildren prepared to sail for Europe on the Queen Elizabeth.

It is his first trip abroad as a private citizen since 1928.

Eisenhower and his family plan to visit England, France, Denmark, Germany, Sweden and Culzean Castle near Prestwick, Scotland, in which the British government has allocated him space for life.

He will address a teachers conference at Stockholm on July 31.

"I hope to carry to such a body the message that we are trying to produce peace, that we are ready to be conciliatory, but not to be pushed around," Eisenhower said.

Interviewed in the huge vessel's veranda cafe, the former President said he believed most Americans are "fine ambassadors of American hopes and aspirations abroad."

He said he presented books like the "Ugly American," which dealt with difficulties in the American foreign ad program, and added:

"We try to be decent people. I think we are. I certainly believe the people of the world are thoroughly of one mind in wanting peace."

In addition to their grandchildren, Barbara Ann, 13, and David Eisenhower, 14, the Eisenhowers were accompanied by Brig. Gen. Robert L. Schulz, the former President's aide, Mrs. Schulz; Freeman Gosden of the "Amos and Andy" radio team, Mrs. Gosden, and their son, Craig, 13.

City Councilman D. J. Carpenter today emphasized that a compromise gas rate ordinance passed by Council Tusday night will affect all consumers in the city.

Councilman Carpenter pointed out that consumers who use as much as 5,000 cubic feet of gas per month will find their bills increased in the neighborhood of 75 cents per month or about $9 per year.

Contrary to a story in yesterday's Herald, Carpenter said his remarks to Council Tuesday night describing one step of the ordinance as a fair compromise concerned the difference between Council's recent proposal to the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. and the gas company's final proposal to Council, not the entire new rate schedule.

Carpenter said the difference between these two proposals was in the rate for the second 50,000 cubic feet of gas used per month. This increase, he continued, affected large users such as industrial plants and some commercial people.

UNDER the old rate ordinance which expired in May, Circleville consumers are paying: 25 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 800 cubic feet; 6½ cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 4,200 cubic feet; 7½ per 100 cubic feet for the next 45,000 cubic feet; 7 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 50,000 cubic feet; and 6½ cents per 100 cubic feet for over 100,000 cubic feet..

The ordinance gaining passage at Tuesday's Council meeting provides rates at: 25 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 1,100 cubic feet; 7 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 3,900 cubic feet; 7½ cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 95,-000 cubic feet; and 6¾ cents per 100 cubic feet for over 100,000 cubic feet.

According to Douglas Cotter-under the old rate the cost of the first 5,000 cubic feet is $4.73 per month. Under the new ordinance, the cost of the first 5,000 cubic feet will be $5.48 per month, or an increase of 75 cents per month. The new rates are to be adjusted as cost of fuel changes.

According to Doublas Cotterman, manager of the local Ohio Fuel office, the compromise ordinance passed here was to be taken to the gas company's Columbus offic for study and additional action by officials there.

Russia Offers To Help Curb Spread of Nuclear Weapons

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union indicated today it would withhold nuclear weapons from Red China if the West dealt likewise with West Germany and other Atlantic Allies.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin told a committee of the 17-nation disarmament conference Moscow is ready to join the United States, Britain and France in a firm pledge to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

He said the four nuclear powers should undertake commitments not to supply atomic arms or military nuclear data to any other country or bloc which does not possess them. These countries in turn should pledge not to seek nuclear weapons, and forbid their use on their territories, he said.

Zorin bitterly attacked West German "militaristic and revanchist circles "during his statement to the committee which is discussing side issues while the full conference is in recess until Tuesday.

U.S. Delegate Arthur H. Dean came to the defense of the West Germans. He said Zorin's attack "against a nation which is doing its best to take its place in a peaceful European community of nations is a piece of blatant war propaganda."

Zorin said that preparations are being intensified on the part of several nations, in particular West Germany, to acquire from the Western Allies atomic arms or the scientific information needed for their production.

"Any further dissemination of these weapons would make it difficult to carry out disarmament measures," he was quoted as saying.

Interplanetary Spaceship To Be Fired toward Venus

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —With a successful balloon shot in the record books, the nation's space agency now takes dead aim at Venus with an interplanetary spaceship scheduled for launching Saturday.

An Atlas-Agena B rocket is set to blast off before dawn Saturday to start a Mariner I spacecraft on a 226 million mile journey to probe mysteries of the cloud-shrouded neighboring planet.

Scientists and technicians labored Wednesday to ready the rocket and payload as another group launched a 135-foot diameter balloon to a point 992 miles in space to test ejection and inflation techniques for an improved Echo communications satellite.

The balloon, folded in the nose of the Thor booster on launching, separated and inflated successfully at an altitude of 230 miles and soared upward to its planned trajectory peak before falling back to burn up in the Earth's atmosphere, as planned, 23 minutes after launching.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported complete success of the mission and said it plans to launch one of the 13-story spheres into orbit in the fall as an experimental passive communications satellite to be named Echo II.

The balloon, largest but not heaviest manmade vehicle ever launched into space, is 35 feet taller and much more rigid than the Echo I balloon placed in orbit two years ago.

Echo II will help determine whether this passive type satellite or an active repeater type like Telstar is the most feasible for an operational space communications network.

In contrast with Wednesday's brief flight, Mariner I is intended to make a 4½-month journey across the vastness of space before flying close to Venus in early December.

NASA hopes to send the spaceship within 10,000 miles of Venus to unravel some of the secrets hidden beneath its thick cloud mantle.

8-Year Olds Find Dynamite Sticks

NORWALK, Ohio (AP) — Two 8-year-old Norwalk boys turned up at their homes Wednesday carrying 31 sticks of dynamite.

The boys, Keith Brunn and Danny Garry, said they found the explosives in a field at the edge of the city. They thought the sticks were giant firecrackers.

The parents called police, who summoned a demolition team from Erie Ordnance Depot. The dynamite was destroyed.

Peru Military Junta Quells Demonstators

Army's Power Grab Draws Rebuff from Hemispheric Allies

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Demonstrations continued in Lima Wednesday night but were broken up quickly by the military junta, whose seizure of power brought sharp rebuffs from hemispheric allies.

The armed forces clamped dictatorial rule on the Andean nation and appeared in complete control—at least for the moment —after overthrowing the constitutional government of President Manuel Prado.

Sporadic demonstrations, which were sparked by students and teen-agers, broke out in the capital in protest against the military takeover of the government to nullify the June 10 national elections.

Troops, firing submachine gun bursts into the air and tear gas, and police, using water cannon and wielding truncheons, dispersed the demonstrations.

Three students were reported wounded during th day.

A bigger threat to the junta came from the giant Confederation of Labor, whose leaders were reported considering a general strike in protest against the military seizure of power. The confederation controls 75 per cent of the nation's labor force.

The United States quickly denounced the coup, suspended diplomatic relations with Peru, and halted further Alliance for Progress aid, which has been pouring into the country at the rate of $75 million a year.

The U.S. action stopped short of a full break in diplomatic relations, and U.S. Ambassador James Loeb was ordered to remain in Lima to report developments. Such consular relations between the two countries as issuance of visas and commercial arrangements will continue.

U.S. aid projects already under way—school lunchs, road, water and sewage work, and low-income housing—also will continue but no new U.S. help can be negotiated until Peru gets a government the United States recognizes.

Four Latin American nations—Venezuela, Colombia, Costa Rica and the Dominican Republic—also refused to recognize the military regime and suspended diplomatic relations. Brazil, Mexico and Panama said they were Studying the situation.

Prado, 72, denied to the last the military chiefs' charge that the elections had been rigged. Unconfirmed reports said he was being held aboard a warship at Callao, Lima's seaport.

Several other officials were reported held with him.

Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, front-runner in last month's presidential race and the military's longtime chief target, disappeared amid reports he had taken asylum in the Venezuelan embassy.

Now 67, he spent five years in the Colombian embassy after Gen. Manuel Odria's coup in 1948.

Gen. Perez Godoy, the 56-year-old head of the 12-man junta, pledged in a broadcast to the nation that "honest and clean elections" will be held next June and civilian government will return by July 28, 1963, a year to the day after Prado's lected successor would have taken office.

Advisory Planning List Sent To Board by Farm Bureau

Efforts to acclerate Pickaway County planning and township zoning was stepped up this week when the county's Board of Commissioners received a suggsted list of personnel to serve on an advisory board devoted to the project.

The list was presented by the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. It included the names of 15 area men.

Recommended to serve on the advisory body were R. C. Palm, Louis E. Hill, Hoyt Martin, Charles Frank, Harry Kern, Wayne E. Brown, Raymond Reiterman, Milton Renick, Paul G. Peck, Russell England, Judson Beougher, Kermit Dountz, C. D. Bennett, Loring Leist and Dick Tootle.

A master plan for both the city and the county came under additional study this week when Mayor Richard Penn met with Commissioners Charles Morris, Clyde Michel and Lloyd Melvin to discuss combined action.

* * *

RENEWED efforts have been made in recent months to provide Circleville with a workable master plan. More recently, the county has also moved to initiate a similar program.

The planning program, for both city and county, is scheduled for more study on July 26 when Chamber of Commerce officials and city and county officers meet at the local chamber office on E. Main St. The session is scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m.

One phase of the joint meeting probably will deal with a proposed questionnaire designed to gain a measure of public opinion on master planning. The explanatory letter will attempt to describe pertinent facts surrounding the makup of a city and county planning project.

In other business this week, the Commission was told by Prosecutor Robert H. Huffer that funds for purchase of a new car for the Pickaway County Engineer's Department would come from the County Road Fund, not the General Fund as previously anticipated. A purchase order was later drawn to this effect.

Additional routine business saw the Commission authorized the installation of five outside lights at the Memorial Hall. A move also was made to employ James Ramey to repair the plaster in Sheriff Walton W. Spangler's office, and to hire Charles Smith to do finish work on the front steps of the Courthouse.

Growth Issues Pace Stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — Gains by some of the "growth" stocks paced a moderate stock market recovery in slow trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .60 to 214.40 with industrials up .90, rails unchanged and utilities up .40.

Gains of fractions to a point or so among key stocks outnumbered losers in the same range. The rise was irregular.

The market was bidding for its first advance in five sessions.

In the absence of any favorable news developments, brokers ascribed the improvement to technical factors. Most prominent of these was the rise in the short interest to 5,158,849 shares, the highest since Sept. 15, 1958.

Nursing Home Rules Shelved By Lawsuit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An appeal filed in Franklin County Common Pleas Court has blocked for the second time new rules and regulations covering Ohio's nursing homes.

Filing the appeal Wednesday was Delbert Dehaas of Uniontown on behalf of the Ohio State Federation of Licensed Nursing Homes of which he is president.

The federation's appeal resulted from rules adopted July 7 by the Ohio Public Health Council. The federation contended as it did when the council adopted new regulations in October 1960, that they were designed to put small nursing home operators out of business.

The 1960 rules, nullified when the latest set was adopted, were thwarted through legal action by nursing home operators.

Principal among the operators' objections are rules requiring more space for patients and personnel training.

Wednesday's appeal was on grounds that the health council adopted the regulations illegally by not following all the steps required in the Administrative Procedures Act. There was no indication when the court will rule on the appeal.

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP) — Attorneys for Roberts E. Gower have attacked termination of his contract as Goshen school superintendent as unreasonable and based on bias and prejudice. He asked Judge Louis Schneider of Hamilton County Common Pleas Court to restrain the Goshen School Board from acting.

Ike Going Abroad To Preach America's Desire for Peace

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said in a shipboard interview yesterday that he would carry abroad a message that the United States wants peace, but will not be pushed around.

He talked with newsmen as he and his wife and two grandchildren prepared to sail for Europe on the Queen Elizabeth.

It is his first trip abroad as a private citizen since 1928.

Eisenhower and his family plan to visit England, France, Denmark, Germany, Sweden and Culzean Castle near Prestwick, Scotland, in which the British government has allocated him space for life.

He will address a teachers conference at Stockholm on July 31.

"I hope to carry to such a body the message that we are trying to produce peace, that we are ready to be conciliatory, but not to be pushed around," Eisenhower said.

Interviewed in the huge vessel's veranda cafe, the former President said he believed most Americans are "fine ambassadors of American hopes and aspirations abroad."

He said he presented books like the "Ugly American," which dealt with difficulties in the American foreign ad program, and added:

"We try to be decent people. I think we are. I certainly believe the people of the world are thoroughly of one mind in wanting peace."

In addition to their grandchildren, Barbara Ann, 13, and David Eisenhower, 14, the Eisenhowers were accompanied by Brig. Gen. Robert L. Schulz, the former President's aide, Mrs. Schulz; Freeman Gosden of the "Amos and Andy" radio team, Mrs. Gosden, and their son, Craig, 13.

City Councilman D. J. Carpenter today emphasized that a compromise gas rate ordinance passd by Council Tusday night will affect all consumers in the city.

Councilman Carpenter pointed out that consumers who use as much as 5,000 cubic feet of gas per month will find their bills increased in the neighborhood of 75 cents per month or about $9 per year.

Contrary to a story in yesterday's Herald, Carpenter said his remarks to Council Tuesday night describing one step of the ordinance as a fair compromise concerned the difference between Council's recent proposal to the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. and the gas company's final proposal to Council, not the entire new rate schedule.

Carpenter said the difference between these two proposals was in the rate for the second 50,000 cubic feet of gas used per month. This increase, he continued, affected large users such as industrial plants and some commercial people.

* * *

UNDER the old rate ordinance which expired in May, Circleville consumers are paying: 25 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 800 cubic feet; 6½ cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 4,200 cubic feet; 7½ per 100 cubic feet for the next 45,000 cubic feet; 7 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 50,000 cubic feet; and 6½ cents per 100 cubic feet for over 100,000 cubic feet..

The ordinance gaining passage at Tuesday's Council meeting provides rates at: 25 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 1,100 cubic feet; 7 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 3,900 cubic feet; 7½ cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 95,000 cubic feet; and 6¾ cents per 100 cubic feet for over 100,000 cubic feet.

According to Douglas Cotter under the old rate the cost of the first 5,000 cubic feet is $4.73 per month. Under the new ordinance, the cost of the first 5,000 cubic feet will be $5.48 per month, or an increase of 75 cents per month. The new rates are to be adjusted as cost of fuel changes.

According to Doublas Cotterman, manager of the local Ohio Fuel office, the compromise ordinance passed here was to be taken to the gas company's Columbus offic for study and additional action by officials there.

Russia Offers To Help Curb Spread of Nuclear Weapons

GENEV A (AP) — The Soviet Union indicated today it would withhold nuclear weapons from Red China if the West dealt likewise with West Germany and other Atlantic Allies.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin told a committee of the 17-nation disarmament conference Moscow is ready to join the United States, Britain and France in a firm pledge to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.

He said the four nuclear powers should undertake commitments not to supply atomic arms or military nuclear data to any other country or bloc which does not possess them. These countries in turn should pledge not to seek nuclear weapons, and forbid their use on their territories, he said.

Zorin bitterly attacked West German "militaristic and revanchist circles "during his statement to the committee which is discussing side issues while the full conference is in recess until Tuesday.

U.S. Delegate Arthur H. Dean came to the defense of the West Germans. He said Zorin's attack "against a nation which is doing its best to take its place in a peaceful European community of nations is a piece of blatant war propaganda."

Zorin said that preparations are being intensified on the part of several nations, in particular West Germany, to acquire from the Western Allies atomic arms or the scientific information needed for their production.

"Any further dissemination of these weapons would make it difficult to carry out disarmament measures," he was quoted as saying.

Interplanetary Spaceship To Be Fired toward Venus

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —With a successful balloon shot in the record books, the nation's space agency now takes dead aim at Venus with an interplanetary spaceship scheduled for launching Saturday.

An Atlas-Agena B rocket is set to blast off before dawn Saturday to start a Mariner I spacecraft on a 226 million mile journey to probe mysteries of the cloud-shrouded neighboring planet.

Scientists and technicians labored Wednesday to ready the rocket and payload as another group launched a 135-foot diameter balloon to a point 992 miles in space to test ejection and inflation techniques for an improved Echo communications satellite.

The balloon, folded in the nose of the Thor booster on launching, separated and inflated successfully at an altitude of 230 miles and soared upward to its planned trajectory peak before falling back to burn up in the Earth's atmosphere, as planned, 23 minutes after launching.

Project officials watched the inflation, flight and burnup of the giant sphere on closed circuit television relayed from a camera mounted in the Thor nose.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported complete success of the mission and said it plans to launch one of the 13-story spheres into orbit in the fall as an experimental passive communications satellite to be named Echo II.

The balloon, largest but not heaviest manmade vehicle ever launched into space, is 35 feet taller and much more rigid than the Echo I balloon placed in orbit two years ago.

Echo II will help determine whether this passive type satellite or an active repeater type like Telstar is the most feasible for an operational space communications network.

In contrast with Wednesday's brief flight, Mariner I is intended to make a 4½-month journey across the vastness of space before flying close to Venus in early December.

NASA hopes to send the spaceship within 10,000 miles of Venus to unravel some of the secrets hidden beneath its thick cloud mantle.

8-Year Olds Find Dynamite Sticks

NORWALK, Ohio (AP) — Two 8-year-old Norwalk boys turned up at their homes Wednesday carrying 31 sticks of dynamite.

The boys, Keith Brunn and Danny Garry, said they found the explosives in a field at the edge of the city. They thought the sticks were giant firecrackers.

The parents called police, who summoned a demolition team from Erie Ordnance Depot. The dynamite was destroyed.

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Demonstrations continued in Lima Wednesday night but were broken up quickly by the military junta, whose seizure of power brought sharp rebuffs from hemispheric allies.

The armed forces clamped dictatorial rule on the Andean nation and appeared in complete control—at least for the moment—after overthrowing the constitutional government of President Manuel Prado.

Sporadic demonstrations, which were sparked by students and teen-agers, broke out in the capital in protest against the military takeover of the government to nullify the June 10 national elections.

Troops, firing submachine gun bursts into the air and tear gas, and police, using water cannon and wielding truncheons, dispersed the demonstrations.

Three students were reported wounded during th day.

A bigger threat to the junta came from the giant Confederation of Labor, whose leaders were reported considering a general strike in protest against the military seizure of power. The confederation controls 75 per cent of the nation's labor force.

The United States quickly denounced the coup, suspended diplomatic relations with Peru, and halted further Alliance for Progress aid, which has been pouring into the country at the rate of $75 million a year.

The U.S. action stopped short of a full break in diplomatic relations, and U.S. Ambassador James Loeb was ordered to remain in Lima to report developments. Such consular relations between the two countries as issuance of visas and commercial arrangements will continue.

U.S. aid projects already under way—school lunchs, road, water and sewage work, and low-income housing—also will continue but no new U.S. help can be negotiated until Peru gets a government the United States recognizes.

Four Latin American nations—Venezuela, Colombia, Costa Rica and the Dominican Republic—also refused to recognize the military regime and suspended diplomatic relations. Brazil, Mexico and Panama said they were Studying the situation.

Prado, 72, denied to the last the military chiefs' charge that the elections had been rigged. Unconfirmed reports said he was being held aboard a warship at Callao, Lima's seaport.

Several other officials were reported held with him.

Victor Raul Haya de la Torre, front-runner in last month's presidential race and the military's longtime chief target, disappeared amid reports he had taken asylum in the Venezuelan embassy.

Now 67, he spent five years in the Colombian embassy after Gen. Manuel Odria's coup in 1948.

Gen. Perez Godoy, the 56-year-old head of the 12-man junta, pledged in a broadcast to the nation that "honest and clean elections" will be held next June and civilian government will return by July 28, 1963, a year to the day after Prado's lected successor would have taken office.

The list was presented by the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. It included the names of 15 area men.

Recommended to serve on the advisory body were R. C. Palm, Louis E. Hill, Hoyt Martin, Charles Frank, Harry Kern, Wayne E. Brown, Raymond Reiterman, Milton Renick, Paul G. Peck, Russell England, Judson Beougher, Kermit Dountz, C. D. Bennett, Loring Leist and Dick Tootle.

A master plan for both the city and the county came under additional study this week when Mayor Richard Penn met with Commissioners Charles Morris, Clyde Michel and Lloyd Melvin to discuss combined action.

RENEWED efforts have been made in recent months to provide Circleville with a workable master plan. More recently, the county has also moved to initiate a similar program.

The planning program, for both city and county, is scheduled for more study on July 26 when Chamber of Commerce officials and city and county officers meet at the local chamber office on E. Main St. The session is scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m.

One phase of the joint meeting probably will deal with a proposed questionnaire designed to gain a measure of public opinion on master planning. The explanatory letter will attempt to describe pertinent facts surrounding the makup of a city and county planning project.

In other business this week, the Commission was told by Prosecutor Robert H. Huffer that funds for purchase of a new car for the Pickaway County Engineer's Department would come from the County Road Fund, not the General Fund as previously anticipated. A purchase order was later drawn to this effect.

Additional routine business saw the Commission authorized the installation of five outside lights at the Memorial Hall. A move also was made to employ James Ramey to repair the plaster in Sheriff Walton W. Spangler's office, and to hire Charles Smith to do finish work on the front steps of the Courthouse.

Growth Issues Pace Stocks

NEW YORK (AP) — Gains by some of the "growth" stocks paced a moderate stock market recovery in slow trading early this afternoon.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up .60 to 214.40 with industrials up .90, rails unchanged and utilities up .40.

Gains of fractions to a point or so among key stocks outnumbered losers in the same range. The rise was irregular.

The market was bidding for its first advance in five sessions.

In the absence of any favorable news developments, brokers ascribed the improvement to technical factors. Most prominent of these was the rise in the short interest to 5,158,849 shares, the highest since Sept. 15, 1958.

Nursing Home Rules Shelved By Lawsuit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An appeal filed in Franklin County Common Pleas Court has blocked for the second time new rules and regulations covering Ohio's nursing homes.

Filing the appeal Wednesday was Delbert Dehaas of Uniontown on behalf of the Ohio State Federation of Licensed Nursing Homes of which he is president.

The federation's appeal resulted from rules adopted July 7 by the Ohio Public Health Council. The federation contended as it did when the council adopted new regulations in October 1960, that they were designed to put small nursing home operators out of business.

The 1960 rules, nullified when the latest set was adopted, were thwarted through legal action by nursing home operators.

Principal among the operators' objections are rules requiring more space for patients and personnel training.

Wednesday's appeal was on grounds that the health council adopted the regulations illegally by not following all the steps required in the Administrative Procedures Act. There was no indication when the court will rule on the appeal.

Aerospace Settlement Pact Includes Disputed Clause

WASHINGTON (AP)—A strange thing about the aerospace industry's new labor settlement is that its key feature—a compulsory union fee payment arrangement known as the agency shop—is currently held to be illegal.

The agency shop, a variation of what the labor organizations call union security, permits an employer's workers to be union members or not as they choose, but requires non-members to pay the union a service fee. The fee generally is the same amount as members pay monthly as dues.

The device is a compromise between (1) the desire of the unions for dues revenue "security" in financing their operations and (2) the disinclination of many employers to herd their workers into unions requiring them to be members in order to hold their jobs, as under the union shop.

The Douglas Aircraft Co., one of the leading firms in the aerospace industry, has just agreed with two unions, the auto workers and machinists, on a new contract including the agency shop arrangement for the first time. The pact is expected to become a pattern for plane-missile makers.

The hitch is that the agency shop is a hotly contested issue. The U. S. Court of Appeals for the 6th Circuit, based at Cincinnati, ruled on June 8 that the agency shop arrangement is illegal under the Taft - Hartley Labor Relations Act.

This is the currently prevailing legal opinion although the auto workers, the union involved in the Cincinnati case, is trying to get the National Labor Relations Board and U. S. solicitor general to appeal to the Supreme Court. The deadline for an appeal is early September.

The agency shop is not prevalent in industry although it has been growing. A Labor Department survey made three years ago showed less than 100,000 workers covered under such a dues-or-fee payment requirement to unions.

Some of the firms covered at that time included Western Union, Campbell Soup, Ohio Edison, Hershey Chocolate and Corn Products Mfg. Co. Since then the agency shop has spread to Hawaiian pineapple industry and to certain workers in the steel, aluminum and auto industries.

Ohio Legion To Air Views In School Fuss

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Delegates to the annual state convention of the American Legion, starting here Friday, may take a stand in the controversy over instruction on communism in public schools.

Among resolutions to be submitted is one by the Westerville and Bexley (Columbus) posts defending the so-called "Spirit of '76" law, which prescribes certain priorities for basic instruction in the schools.

A 1955 amendment to the law has been under fire from some Ohio educators who claim they are prevented from teaching world communism. The amendment requires that students must first receive basic instruction in Americanism before they can be taught about communism.

The resolution, among other things, states that "schools in Columbus, Toledo, and elsewhere have found no difficulty in carrying out the intent of the law and at the same time informing pupils about world communism and world affairs."

In all, the Ohio Legion's various committees will consider 14 resolutions. The resolutions are to be acted upon at the convention's general session Saturday.

Faced with overcoming the boredom that sometimes smothers midsummer appetites, the housewife this week can find plenty of inspiration at fruit counters.

Available in quantities that won't often be duplicated again this year are blueberries, peaches, grapes, cantaloupes, watermelons, honeydew melons, cherries and lemons.

Of these, the U.S. Department of Gariculture lists blueberries, peaches, lemons, grapes, cantaloupes and watermelons as best buys.

At the vegetable counters, golden yellow corn is becoming increasingly common, along with lettuce, tomatoes, green beans, cabbage, cucumbers, onions and potatoes.

At the meat counter, beef cuts continue to be popular, as do turkeys.

Midwest beef chuck roasts and steaks, round steak and ground beef are expected to lead the meat buys, some at slightly lower prices than last week, but lamb will remain scarce. Among vegetables, best buys appear to be in beans, carrots, corn, endive, escarole, onions, potatoes and the common salad greens and tomatoes.

iFsh buys include clams, halibut and crab meat in the Northeast, Spanish mackerel, mullet, shrimp and sea bass in the Southeast, yellow perch and lobster in the Midwest, catfish, red snapper and sea trout in the Southwest and rock fish, cod and salmon in the West.

U.S. Is Cool On Idea of Space Girls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American part of space is likely to remain an all-male domain for some years to come, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration indicates in explaining why women have failed to qualify for membership in the exclusive astronaut club.

George M. Low, director of spacecraft missions for NASA, said none of the six women among 250 applicants for astronaut training have been able to meet all of the stringent qualifications established earlier this year.

Low also told the House Science and Astronautics Committee that the pool of qualified men was more than ample to meet the need for the 40 or 50 astronauts required to carry out presently planned space explorations.

He pointed out that none of the women space hopefuls was a jet test pilot, that some of them lacked the required scientific or engineering education and "others were too old."

Astronaut John H. Glenn, despite persistent committee questioning, shied away from getting into the space battle of the sexes.

As far as he was concerned, Glenn said, the space effort should get "the best qualified people, whatever their sex, color or creed."

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy, in his 1960 campaign for the White House, told a crowd: "I do not say the job will be easy." He'll have been President 18 months Friday. It turns out he was a good prophet.

But, just because he was right in this, he was inaccurate in some of his other 1960 forecasts. For instance, he said:

"If the American people give us their support at the polls in November, and elect a Democratic administration and a liberal Congress, we will be able to give the country the legislation and leadership it so badly needs."

He got his wish: A Congress overwhelmingly Democratic although it's debatable that it's liberal. But one of the toughest, and most disastrous, parts of his job has been to get this Congress to approve the legislation he says is needed.

It killed or sidetracked these major Kennedy programs: Farm, federal aid to education, medical care for the aged, a new department of urban affairs and housing. And it has shot holes in his ideas on tax revisions.

It is moving toward approving his foreign aid program. If it didn't, the United States would have to make monumental changes in its foreign policy. It has partly approved his foreign trade bill which is still under consideration. Most other major items are still bottled up.

Although it may have been overlooked, it was in this 1960 campaign that Kennedy left the country in on his plan to keep wages and prices down, a plan that he has not yet clearly stated. He said at that time:

"Without resorting to the compulsion of wage or price controls, the President of the United States must actively use the powers of leadership in pursuit of well-defined goals of price stability. For these powers—of reason, moral suasion, and informed public opinion, influencing of public opinion —have by no means been exhausted to date."

What he meant in 1960 he put into action in 1962 with the steel price and wage settlement. But this brought him one of his greatest headaches: The businessmen turned sour on him.

In the 1960 campaign he said "we are pledged to maintain a balanced budget except in times of national emergency or severe recession." But there is no national emergency, his administration does not say there is a severe recession, and the budget is not only not balanced but is not likely to be any time soon.

He told Congress, after taking office in 1961, that the "American economy is in trouble." This was true. He pointed out then that unemployment in January 1961 was about 5.4 million people. This was 6.6 per cent of the labor force.

It has gone down to about 5.5 per cent of the total labor force, with 4.46 million unemployed in June.

The stock market, which had been staggering around for weeks, took a brief spurt upward a week ago when he liberalized for business a tax allowance of about $1.5 billion on depreciation of machinery and equipment.

During the 1960 campaign Kennedy talked a lot about improvement in civil rights, but the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People hasn't been completely happy with him on what he has done in this field.

Although he is a Roman Catholic, the Catholic leadership and the Catholic press have strenuously opposed his program of federal aid to public schools, a program which would exclude aid to parochial schools. That program is now all but dead.

Yet, Kennedy's personal popularity, according to the polls, remains extremely high. And his trips to Latin America, particularly Mexico, were a huge personal success.

Cadillac

It could easily be in your driveway!

What motorist wouldn't happily trade circumstances with this delighted gentleman?

For this is his first Cadillac—and its arrival in his driveway has occasioned almost as much excitement in the neighborhood as it has in his own home.

But if you appreciate his good fortune—then envy him also his wisdom.

For he has, without any question, made the move to the "car of cars" at the ideal moment. He discovered, for instance, that the Cadillac Coupe is now actually priced below eleven models of other less desirable motor cars.

Furthermore, he found that most of the features he wanted—power steering, power braking and Hydra-Matic drive—were included in the initial price of a Cadillac.

And he has already had a hint of other Cadillac economies. The gasoline gauge has barely budged off the "full" mark and the car moves so quietly that he knows he can drive it with pride for years to come.

Yet, he'll be in for a happy surprise when the time does come to sell it. For a Cadillac can be expected to retain a greater portion of its value than any other motor car.

So if you have a Cadillac in your heart—then let us show you how quickly and easily we could put one in your driveway.

But there is no national emergency, his administration does not say there is a severe recession, and the budget is not only not balanced but is not likely to be any time soon.

He told Congress, after taking office in 1961, that the "American economy is in trouble." It still is. He pointed out then that unemployment in January 1961 was about 5.4 million people. This was 6.6 per cent of the labor force.

It has gone down to about 5.5 per cent of the total labor force, with 4.46 million unemployed in June.

The stock market, which had been staggering around for weeks, took a brief spurt upward a week ago when he liberalized for business a tax allowance of about $1.5 billion on depreciation of machinery and equipment.

During the 1960 campaign Kennedy talked a lot about improvement in civil rights, but the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People hasn't been completely happy with him on what he has done in this field.

Although he is a Roman Catholic, the Catholic leadership and the Catholic press have strenuously opposed his program of federal aid to public schools, a program which would exclude aid to parochial schools. That program is now all but dead.

Yet, Kennedy's personal popularity, according to the polls, remains extremely high. And his trips to Latin America, particularly Mexico, were a huge personal success.

Military Burial Slated Friday

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Col. Albert B. Seitz, 63, a native of Springfield and a former Columbus resident, will be buried with military honors here Friday morning after services in the Schoedinger Chapel.

Pallbearers for the World War II leader who died Sunday in Washington, D. C., will be men who served with him in the 136th Artillery Battalion of the 7th Division, Ohio National Guard.

Col. Seitz, a West Point graduate, led an OSS combat unit through Yugoslavia in World War II. He was a double amputee, due to frozen feet he suffered in the Yugoslavia mission.

The Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes in Alaska was discovered only 46 years ago by a National Geographic Society expedition headed by Dr. Robert F. Griggs.

Cadillac

It could easily be in your driveway!

What motorist wouldn't happily trade circumstances with this delighted gentleman?

For this is his first Cadillac—and its arrival in his driveway has occasioned almost as much excitement in the neighborhood as it has in his own home.

But if you appreciate his good fortune—then envy him also his wisdom.

For he has, without any question, made the move to the "car of cars" at the ideal moment. He discovered, for instance, that the Cadillac Coupe is now actually priced below eleven models of other less desirable motor cars.

Furthermore, he found that most of the features he wanted—power steering, power braking and Hydra-Matic drive—were included in the initial price of a Cadillac.

And he has already had a hint of other Cadillac economies. The gasoline gauge has barely budged off the "full" mark and the car moves so quietly that he knows he can drive it with pride for years to come.

Yet, he'll be in for a happy surprise when the time does come to sell it. For a Cadillac can be expected to retain a greater portion of its value than any other motor car.

So if you have a Cadillac in your heart—then let us show you how quickly and easily we could put one in your driveway.

Come see us at any time.

Telstar, the 34-inch ball put into orbit through the cooperation of the United States government and private enterprise, is not the first satellite to perform a useful task.

But somehow American Telephone and Telegraph's property has really brought it home to Americans — and to other peoples around the world — that the conquest of outer space is going to make life better for everyone living on this planet.

Of course Telstar, all by itself, cannot do much to meet the growing need for channels to carry messages, as well as television and radio programs, around the world. After all, it is only a pilot model for others to come.

Telstar is obviously a portent of things to come. The fact that AT&T put up millions to build, launch and track it seems to say that private enterprise will not be dealt out in making man's new knowledge of space serve man. Certainly it says that private enterprise has the initiative and the resources.

It's noteworthy that Telstar is an American satellite. We are ahead in seeking practical applications of what we know. And the risk capital put up by AT&T will prove a good investment if we draw the obvious lesson — which is that here, as elsewhere in our economy, the profit motive can get best results.

Rebel Salute Saves Lives

By Hal Boyle

WALLAND, Tenn. (AP) — In America's war of brother against brother a hundred years ago, a detachment of Confederate cavalry once saluted the U.S. Stars and Stripes—and thereby unknowingly saved their lives.

This odd and little-known incident, documented by Miss Inez Burns, a local historian, happened early in that long ago civil strife that tore the nation asunder.

Turbulent Tennessee—the last state to secede from the union and the first to be readmitted—was divided in loyalty.

The sentiment in the slave holding flatlands was pro-Southern. But many of the tradition-minded mountaineers, whose ancestors had fought valorously for independence in the Revolutionary War, were strongly pro-Union.

Bitterness developed when Confederate troops stationed in these foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains were ordered to disarm the local populace. The angry mountaineers, who cherished their squirrel rifles as a constitutional right, began holding Union rallies and erected flagpoles from which they defiantly flew Old Glory.

Learning that a Confederate officer, a Lt. White, was to lead his troops on a gun-seizure mission, a local judge warned him that he would encounter the Stars and Stripes floating from a pole in a narrow mountain pass.

"Now, let me ask you not to disturb that flag," he advised. "The mountain men placed it there. It belongs to them, and if you leave it undisturbed, you will be kindly treated on your trip. But as sure as you touch it or interfere with it, you will have to get out of those mountains."

Later Lt. White recalled:

"I said nothing to the men about it, and as we went up the narrow defile, suddenly we came to the opening, and there floated at the top of a tall pole the Stars and Stripes in all its grandeur.

"I looked around and saw a number of the men with their guns raised as if to shoot. I halted the squad and made them a little speech, telling them to lower their guns. That was the flag under which we were born, and under which our fathers had fought, and many of them died.

"While we were engaged in efforts to establish a new government, and were fighting under a new flag, still that was the flag of our fathers, and let us honor it for its history and for the memory of the blood poured out so freely by our brave ancestors in its defense. Instead of doing it any injury, I proposed that we salute it.

"Then, following my leadership, they rode in single file, forming a circle around the pole, and we lifted our hats and reverently bowed our heads. Tears streamed down the faces of a number of men as we stood in this attitude before the old flag.

"After a brief silence the circle was broken and, forming twos, we went on. We knew nothing of anyone being in sight, but the news of our saluting the flag went faster than we traveled, and appeared to be known spontaneously all over.

"We were never treated with more hospitality and kindness by any people. They prepared us dinners of the best they had, fed our horses, took us into their homes, and were lavish in their acts of kindness. But they did not bring out their guns, and we could not find them."

What Lt. White didn't know at the time was that armed mountaineers had lurked in ambush on each side of the gap as the Confederates rode up.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—If taxes are cut to awaken a lackadaisical economy how will the treasury make up its deficit?

By selling securities at a high enough interest rate to interest long term investors—that's the apparent idea of the Federal Reserve Board chairman. He prefers higher interest rates to further monetary inflation.

By borrowing short term at a lower rate from the nation's banks—that's the way, more often than not, it's been done in the past. This inflates the supply of money and credit, even if price inflation doesn't follow immediately.

Those who are urging a tax cut now—along with those who advocate pepping up the economy by more and faster government spending—say that the treasury can finance the deficit by just being patient.

That is, in the tax cut (or the greater spending, or both) is counted upon to increase business activity and personal incomes enough to raise tax collections and finally balance the budget.

The fiscal policy that Federal Reserve Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr. appeared to be advocating in his testimony before the House Banking Committee would let interest rates do what comes naturally. That is, let them rise with the increased Treasury borrowing. The aim: To put the new securities in the hands of long term investors rather than in the hands of the commercial banking system.

He denied that the federal reserve planned to end the easy money policy of the last 18 months. But he opposed any plan to make money easier by expanding bank resources so they could buy short term treasury securities at a low interest rate.

The easy money advocates are sure to fight Martin's ideas.

Some hold that interest rates already are too high. The federal reserve and the administration has wanted short term interest rates kept high enough to discourage further loss of investment money to European money centers where yields are higher.

But easy money advocates hold that theirs is the sure way to get the economy moving. They say that low rates encourage consumers to buy on time, whether it be kitchen appliances or homes, and businessmen to take risks and expand or go into new ventures.

The theory is that such consumer and business spending is sure to recreate more taxable income (despite price rises), so that even lower rates bring in more funds to the treasury.

An increasing treasury deficit from a tax cut would put pressure on present interest rates because heavy sales of government securities tend to absorb supplies of investment funds. The money market, like any other, responds to increased demand and smaller supply.

The federal reserve could offset this by a number of credit expanaling moves that would give banks more funds to buy the Treasury's short term notes. This would hold interest rates down.

But Martin says any such combination of artificially cheap money and increased spending "always leads to trouble."

Northeast U.S. Toasted by Hard Drought

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A northeastern drought that is drying up farm land and toasting pastures brown has entered its fourth week with mounting pleas for governmental assistance.

Some showers were predicted for parts of the afflicted area today, but many farmers insisted that even excessive rainfall could not undue damage already done.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has designated 22 counties in Pennsylvania as federal disaster areas and is considering the plight of 18 other counties in that state.

Eight New Jersey counties have been declared federal disaster areas. Farmers in a 24-county area of New York State are clamoring for similar treatment. The 24 counties represent more than seven million acres and include 38,000 of New York State's 80,000 farms.

A federal disaster area declaration makes it possible for affected farmers to obtain aid in the form of low-interest loans and permission to use lands retired in the soil bank.

Several small towns in New Jersey have placed mild controls on domestic water use because of low reservoirs. No community, however, is reported to have a dangerously low water supply.

RECENT pyrotechnics in the Wall Street area have sent gagsters scurrying to the files to resuscitate stories that helped ease scorched investors' pains during the 1929 crash. It was Eddie Cantor who suggested that the tickers print prices on rope instead of paper—so that at the close of the market speculators could hang themselves. He also told of one man who, despite the collapse, actually made a killing in the market. He shot the manager of an A. and P.

A deflated "genius of finance" admitted, "Since I lost my last cent, half my friends no longer speak to me." He was asked, "How about the other half?" He replied, "They don't know it yet!"

Inside You and Yours

By BURTON H. FERN, M.D.

Will you be driving one of the cars that kill 40,000 Americans yearly — and maim 1½ million others? That's like wiping out two-thirds of Las Vegas and clobbering everyone in Detroit too. No wonder auto manufacturers recess steering wheels, pad dashboards, urge seat belts and are thinking out other safety designs.

Fast emergency reactions, sharper vision and better hearing don't matter much. Neither does your past accident record. Most crashes are the driver's first.

You don't need a crystal ball to predict future auto accidents. Your fortune is printed on the back of your driver's license. That list of traffic offenses (other than parking) and violation points tells all, says the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. They cite chapter and verse.

North Carolina: drivers with repeated violations had 6 times as many accidents. Iowa: repeated offenders were involved in 1½ times as many crashes. Manitoba, Canada: for every 2 fatal smashups involving drivers with 5 or less violation points, 28 could be linked to drivers with 6 or 7 points.

Speeding was the most common offense. Next came improper passing and, trird, not stopping at stop signs.

Psychologists explain that repeated traffic violators can't play according to everyday rules on the road or elsewhere. Often they stayed away from school, have court records of offenses against persons or property and turn out to be poor credit risks.

Even though your personality and point score show no accident in your future, you can't drive too carefully. That idiot — who races through a red light and smashes into your car — may not know about your unblemished record!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

European Expectations High

By George Sokolsky

It is difficult to explain to one generation that it cannot have the benefits which were the natural advantage of another generation. For instance, as the population of the United States increased, the water supply of the country has decreased and unless economical use of sea water can be developed in a reasonable time, this country will be in real trouble. Similarly, as long as such a supply of iron ore as the Mesabi Range served us, we were able to create the largest steel plant on Earth; now, we are importing iron ore from Newfoundland and Venezuela and other places. It makes a difference.

The population of Europe and the United States, as given by the Population Reference Bureau, is follows:

The Common Market	169,585,000
The EFTA	89,729,000
Soviet Russia	214,400,000
Total for Soviet bloc	310,190,000
United States	180,670,000

Soviet Russia	8,992,644
United States	3,615,207

Canada, with a tiny population of about 18,000,000, covers 3,851,806 square miles.

There is no absolute relationship between population and area and the standard of living of a people or their national significance. The United Kingdom, for instance, one of the most significant nations, has a population of 52,539,000 and an area of only 94,215 square miles. Nevertheless, this country dominated the world politically and commercially for three centuries from Elizabeth I to World War II. France, which was the leading nation in Europe for many centuries, has only a population of 45,540,000 and an area of 212,821 square miles. Nor does density of population prove a point. Soviet Russia, now so powerful, has a density of 25 per square mile; the United States has a density of 50 per square mile; whereas the Netherlands has a density of 916 per square mile and Belgium a density of 777.

As population increases, the problem of natural resources becomes more severe. Great Britain and Japan are countries with limited natural resources, and their history is the story of the search for countries with ample resources which became colonies. Great Britain eventually developed them into dominions in a system called Imperial Preference. The Japanese fought four wars to conquer China and other parts of East Asia and failed largely as a result of American interference. Great Britain and Japan are still seeking to regain protected markets for both raw materials and manufactured goods.

The mixture of peoples continues on as large a scale as ever because peoples since World War II have been migrating either as refugees or as workers. There are no realistic national admixtures when Italians settle in France or Switzerland, but between 1953-58 about 674,000 Algerian Moslems settled in France; thus, a new racial element was introduced similar to the Puerto Rican and Cuban migration to New York and Miami. Although many Algerians returned to their own country in due course, they inevitably leave a racial trace if they stay long enough.

A similar migration has been taking place to the Netherlands to which Indonesians have been moving. It is not so long ago since what is today called Indonesia was known as the Dutch East Indies. Soviet Russia contains within its borders a vast conglomeration of peoples racially remote from each other. However, these people move within the Soviet Union and the races intermingle.

Such racial admixtures have little effect on production or consumption. The United States with a very sharp racial admixture enjoys the highest standard of iving measured by national possessions. According to 1959-60 figures, the United States showed 339 automobiles per 100 persons. No European country reached a comparable figure. This proves so with all consumers goods both as to quantity and quality. However, the standard of living nearly everywhere is rising and therefore opens vast unsaturated markets. George W. Ball, Under-Secretary of State, recently observed:

"Most Europeans are only just beginning to enjoy many of the consumer goods that Americans have known for years — automobiles, electric refrigerators, air-conditioning. Their demands are increasing. Europe is undergoing a revolution of rising expectations quite as profound as that which is sweeping the less-developed countries — but, of course, on a higher plane."

Telstar, the 34-inch ball put into orbit through the cooperation of the United States government and private enterprise, is not the first satellite to perform a useful task.

But somehow American Telephone and Telegraph's property has really brought it home to Americans — and to other peoples around the world — that the conquest of outer space is going to make life better for everyone living on this planet.

Of course Telstar, all by itself, cannot do much to meet the growing need for channels to carry messages, as well as television and radio programs, around the world. After all, it is only a pilot model for others to come.

Telstar is obviously a portent of things to come. The fact that AT&T put up millions to build, launch and track it seems to say that private enterprise will not be dealt out in making man's new knowledge of space serve man. Certainly it says that private enterprise has the initiative and the resources.

And the risk capital put up by AT&T will prove a good investment if we draw the obvious lesson — which is that here, as elsewhere in our economy, the profit motive can get best results.

Rebel Salute Saves Lives

By Hal Boyle

WALLAND, Tenn. (AP) — In America's war of brother against brother a hundred years ago, a detachment of Confederate cavalry once saluted the U.S. Stars and Stripes—and thereby unknowingly saved their lives.

This odd and little-known incident, documented by Miss Inez Burns, a local historian, happened early in that long ago civil strife that tore the nation asunder.

Turbulent Tennessee—the last state to secede from the union and the first to be readmitted—was divided in loyalty.

The sentiment in the slave-holding flatlands was pro-Southern. But many of the tradition-minded mountaineers, whose ancestors had fought valorously for independence in the Revolutionary War, were strongly pro-Union.

Bitterness developed when Confederate troops stationed in these foothills of the Great Smoky Mountains were ordered to disarm the local populace. The angry mountaineers, who cherished their squirrel rifles as a constitutional right, began holding Union rallies and erected flagpoles from which they defiantly flew Old Glory.

Learning that a Confederate officer, a Lt. White, was to lead his troops on a gun-seizure mission, a local judge warned him that he would encounter the Stars and Stripes floating from a pole in a narrow mountain pass.

"Now, let me ask you not to disturb that flag," he advised. "The mountain men placed it there. It belongs to them, and if you leave it undisturbed, you will be kindly treated on your trip. But as sure as you touch it or interfere with it, you will have to get out of those mountains."

Later Lt. White recalled:

"I said nothing to the men about it, and as we went up the narrow defile, suddenly we came to the opening, and there floated at the top of a tall pole the Stars and Stripes in all its grandeur.

"I looked around and saw a number of the men with their guns raised as if to shoot. I halted the squad and made them a little speech, telling them to lower their guns. That was the flag under which we were born, and under which our fathers had fought, and many of them died.

"While we were engaged in efforts to establish a new government, and were fighting under a new flag, still that was the flag of our fathers, and let us honor it for its history and for the memory of the blood poured out so freely by our brave ancestors in its defense. Instead of doing it any injury, I proposed that we salute it.

"Then, following my leadership, they rode in single file, forming a circle around the pole, and we lifted our hats and reverently bowed our heads. Tears streamed down the faces of a number of men as we stood in this attitude before the old flag.

"After a brief silence the circle was broken and, forming twos, we went on. We knew nothing of anyone being in sight, but the news of our saluting the flag went faster than we traveled, and appeared to be known spontaneously all over.

"We were never treated with more hospitality and kindness by any people. They prepared us dinners of the best they had, fed our horses, took us into their homes, and were lavish in their acts of kindness. But they did not bring out their guns, and we could not find them."

What Lt. White didn't know at the time was that armed mountaineers had lurked in ambush on each side of the gap as the Confederates rode up.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP)—If taxes are cut to awaken a lackadaisical economy how will the treasury make up its deficit?

By selling securities at a high enough interest rate to interest long term investors—that's the apparent idea of the Federal Reserve Board chairman. He prefers higher interest rates to further monetary inflation.

By borrowing short term at a lower rate from the nation's banks—that's the way, more often than not, it's been done in the past. This inflates the supply of money and credit, even if price inflation doesn't follow immediately.

Those who are urging a tax cut now—along with those who advocate pepping up the economy by more and faster government spending—say that the treasury can finance the deficit by just being patient.

That is, in the tax cut (or the greater spending, or both) is counted upon to increase business activity and personal incomes enough to raise tax collections and finally balance the budget.

The fiscal policy that Federal Reserve Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr. appeared to be advocating in his testimony before the House Banking Committee would let interest rates do what comes naturally. That is, let them rise with the increased Treasury borrowing. The aim: To put the new securities in the hands of long term investors rather than in the hands of the commercial banking system.

He denied that the federal reserve planned to end the easy money policy of the last 18 months. But he opposed any plan to make money easier by expanding bank resources so they could buy short term treasury securities at a low interest rate.

The easy money advocates are sure to fight Martin's ideas.

Some hold that interest rates already are too high. The federal reserve and the administration has wanted short term interest rates kept high enough to discourage further loss of investment money to European money centers where yields are higher.

But easy money advocates hold that theirs is the sure way to get the economy moving. They say that low rates encourage consumers to buy on time, whether it be kitchen appliances or homes, and businessmen to take risks and expand or go into new ventures.

The theory is that such consumer and business spending is sure to recreate more taxable income (despite price rises), so that even lower rates bring in more funds to the treasury.

An increasing treasury deficit from a tax cut would put pressure on present interest rates because heavy sales of government securities tend to absorb supplies of investment funds. The money market, like any other, responds to increased demand and smaller supply.

The federal reserve could offset this by a number of credit expanaling moves that would give banks more funds to buy the Treasury's short term notes. This would hold interest rates down.

But Martin says any such combination of artificially cheap money and increased spending "always leads to trouble."

Northeast U.S. Toasted by Hard Drought

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A northeastern drought that is drying up farm land and toasting pastures brown has entered its fourth week with mounting pleas for governmental assistance.

Some showers were predicted for parts of the afflicted area today, but many farmers insisted that even excessive rainfall could not undue damage already done.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has designated 22 counties in Pennsylvania as federal disaster areas and is considering the plight of 18 other counties in that state.

A federal disaster area declaration makes it possible for affected farmers to obtain aid in the form of low-interest loans and permission to use lands retired in the soil bank.

Several small towns in New Jersey have placed mild controls on domestic water use because of low reservoirs. No community, however, is reported to have a dangerously low water supply.

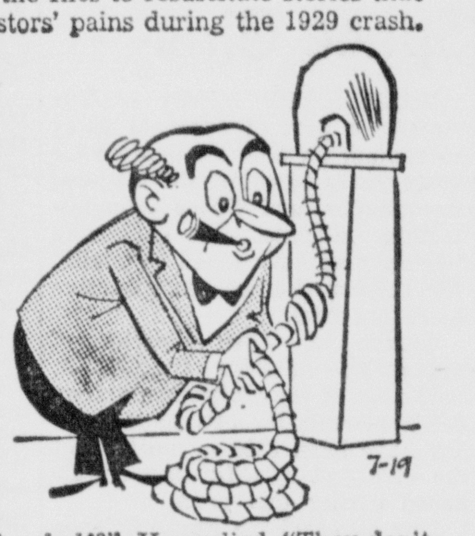
Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

RECENT pyrotechnics in the Wall Street area have sent gagsters scurrying to the files to resuscitate stories that helped ease scorched investors' pains during the 1929 crash. It was Eddie Cantor who suggested that the tickers print prices on rope instead of paper—so that at the close of the market speculators could hang themselves. He also told of one man who, despite the collapse, actually made a killing in the market. He shot the manager of an A. and P.



A deflated "genius of finance" admitted, "Since I lost my last cent, half my friends no longer speak to me." He was asked, "How about the other half?" He replied, "They don't know it yet!"

A visitor to an Indian reservation near Tucson noticed one old squaw who had an expression of sublime serenity on her face. The visitor asked the squaw respectfully, "With the world in its present state, how do you manage to achieve such obviously complete tranquility?"

"It's easy," confided the old squaw. "I take two tranquilizers, three times a day."

Gerald Kloss, preparing a eulogistic article on Ogden Nash for a Milwaukee periodical, selected these as most typical of Nash's unique poetic flashes:

1. I sit in an office at 244 Madison Avenue
   And say to myself, you have a responsible job, havenue?
2. He who attempts to tease the cobra
   Is soon a sadder man, and sobra.
3. Affection is a noble quality:
   It leads to generosity and jollity.
   But it also leads to breach of promise

Inside You and Yours

By BURTON H. FERN, M.D.

Will you be driving one of the cars that kill 40,000 Americans yearly — and maim 1½ million others? That's like wiping out two-thirds of Las Vegas and clobbering everyone in Detroit too. No wonder auto manufacturers recess steering wheels, pad dashboards, urge seat belts and are thinking out other safety designs.

Fast emergency reactions, sharper vision and better hearing don't matter much. Neither does your past accident record. Most crashes are the driver's first.

You don't need a crystal ball to predict future auto accidents. Your fortune is printed on the back of your driver's license. That list of traffic offenses (other than parking) and violation points tells all, says the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. They cite chapter and verse.

North Carolina: drivers with repeated violations had 6 times as many accidents. Iowa: repeated offenders were involved in 1½ times as many crashes. Manitoba, Canada: for every 2 fatal smashups involving drivers with 5 or less violation points, 28 could be linked to drivers with 6 or 7 points.

Speeding was the most common offense. Next came improper passing and, trird, not stopping at stop signs.

Psychologists explain that repeated traffic violators can't play according to everyday rules on the road or elsewhere. Often they stayed away from school, have court records of offenses against persons or property and turn out to be poor credit risks.

Even though your personality and point score show no accident in your future, you can't drive too carefully. That idiot — who races through a red light and smashes into your car — may not know about your unblemished record!

Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. While he cannot undertake to answer individual letters, he will use readers' questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Fern in care of this newspaper.

European Expectations High

By George Sokolsky

It is difficult to explain to one generation that it cannot have the benefits which were the natural advantage of another generation. For instance, as the population of the United States increased, the water supply of the country has decreased and unless economical use of sea water can be developed in a reasonable time, this country will be in real trouble. Similarly, as long as such a supply of iron ore as the Mesabi Range served us, we were able to create the largest steel plant on Earth; now, we are importing iron ore from Newfoundland and Venezuela and other places. It makes a difference.

The population of Europe and the United States, as given by the Population Reference Bureau, is follows:

The Common Market	169,585,000
The EFTA	89,729,000
Soviet Russia	214,400,000
Total for Soviet bloc	310,190,000
United States	180,670,000

Soviet Russia	8,992,644
United States	3,615,207

Canada, with a tiny population of about 18,000,000, covers 3,851,806 square miles.

There is no absolute relationship between population and area and the standard of living of a people or their national significance. The United Kingdom, for instance, one of the most significant nations, has a population of 52,539,000 and an area of only 94,215 square miles. Nevertheless, this country dominated the world politically and commercially for three centuries from Elizabeth I to World War II. France, which was the leading nation in Europe for many centuries, has only a population of 45,540,000 and an area of 212,821 square miles. Nor does density of population prove a point. Soviet Russia, now so powerful, has a density of 25 per square mile; the United States has a density of 50 per square mile; whereas the Netherlands has a density of 916 per square mile and Belgium a density of 777.

As population increases, the problem of natural resources becomes more severe. Great Britain and Japan are countries with limited natural resources, and their history is the story of the search for countries with ample resources which became colonies. Great Britain eventually developed them into dominions in a system called Imperial Preference. The Japanese fought four wars to conquer China and other parts of East Asia and failed largely as a result of American interference. Great Britain and Japan are still seeking to regain protected markets for both raw materials and manufactured goods.

The mixture of peoples continues on as large a scale as ever because peoples since World War II have been migrating either as refugees or as workers. There are no realistic national admixtures when Italians settle in France or Switzerland, but between 1953- 58 about 674,000 Algerian Moslems settled in France; thus, a new racial element was introduced similar to the Puerto Rican and Cuban migration to New York and Miami. Although many Algerians returned to their own country in due course, they inevitably leave a racial trace if they stay long enough.

A similar migration has been taking place to the Netherlands to which Indonesians have been moving. It is not so long ago since what is today called Indonesia was known as the Dutch East Indies. Soviet Russia contains within its borders a vast conglomeration of peoples racially remote from each other. However, these people move within the Soviet Union and the races intermingle.

Such racial admixtures have little effect on production or consumption. The United States with a very sharp racial admixture enjoys the highest standard of living measured by national possessions. According to 1959-60 figures, the United States showed 339 automobiles per 100 persons. No European country reached a comparable figure. This proves so with all consumers goods both as to quantity and quality. However, the standard of living nearly everywhere is rising and therefore opens vast unsaturated markets. George W. Ball, Under-Secretary of State, recently observed:

"Most Europeans are only just beginning to enjoy many of the consumer goods that Americans have known for years — automobiles, electric refrigerators, air-conditioning. Their demands are increasing. Europe is undergoing a revolution of rising expectations quite as profound as that which is sweeping the less-developed countries — but, of course, on a higher plane."

Redecorate Your Bathroom With Beauty in Mind

By ELEANOR ROSS

Enamel is indicated because it is the best finish for a room where walls and ceiling must be able to resist frequent washing and the moisture that's constantly in the air.

The choice of colors is very important. Flattery is always welcome in the early morning and the most flattering wall shades belong to the pink, peach, rose and coral families, which reflect light that gives us a bright, healthy look Gold and pure greens are also good, but the yellow-greens should be avoided — they are most unflattering.

After your freshly enameled walls have dried, select a contrasting color and apply it with a stippling roller or a sponge.

Stencils provide an easy way to dress up cabinets and accessories. You can make your own stencils or buy them ready-made at most paint or art supply stores.

Secure them firmly to the dry surface with masking tape and use a stencil brush to apply the color. Remove the stencil and enjoy your handiwork.

Use good judgment in the matter of lighting, too. Incandescent bulbs give a warmer, more flattering light than do standard cool white fluorescent tubes which tend to drain the red from lips and cheeks.

If you prefer fluorescent lighting select tubes known as deluxe cool or warm white or soft light. There are also peach and pink tones that are ideal for use near mirrors.

Most bathrooms are small, but they can be made to look larger if they are painted in bright tones of the colors suggested earlier as being the most suitable.

A room painted pink would look larger than one done in pure red. A white ceiling will look higher than one enameled a deep color.

If you want color overhead, choose a paler tint of the wall color. If you don't mind a lower-looking ceiling, paint yours a darker shade of the wall color.

As for fabric accessories, two different colors in various shades and tints should look beautiful, but more than two can be distracting, especially in a small room.

Patterns that are not too loud or too busy are attractive, but don't go overboard.

There are such beautiful color schemes in the store displays as well as in home service magazines that, if one doesn't have a set or pet scheme of one's own, it shouldn't be too difficult to arrive at a selection that will delight you.

Some Helpful Pointers On Care of Glassware

By ELEANOR ROSS

Beautiful glassware repays you a hundredfold in daily pleasure for the care you give it.

Don't be afraid to use your best stemware, tumblers and bowls for family dinners instead of reserving them for state occasions. Just a few precautions are necessary to keep your glassware doing long-time duty.

Don't hold fine glass tableware under running water, either hot or cold. Extreme changes in temperature put a strain on glassware.

Study your kitchen sink top or drainboards until you find the most practical glass-washing arrangement. If possible, place soiled glasses on a towel to the right of the dishpan or sink and put clean glasses to drain on another towel to the left.

It's better to do glassware first, and by itself.

Milky glasses should be rinsed in cool, clear water before washing in hot suds.

Hot suds make washing easy and remove sticky liquids or dregs in a few seconds. Wash one glass at a time. A longhandled dish mop or bottle brush is useful for deep glasses.

A few drops of bluing or amonia in the suds will add luster to glassware.

Keep the rinse water warm for delicate pieces, very hot for sturdy ones.

Wipe glassware with a soft, lintless towel and store immediately in cupboard or closet. If the stem is fragile, it's best to handle a footed piece by the base. Keep rims up, not down, on the shelf. Avoid stacking tumblers.

Modern glassware, noted for its simplicity of design, depends on spotless sparkle to bring out its real beauty.

Bowls, pitchers and vases of this type need to be washed and dried frequntly and throughly.

Lime deposits can be removed from water bottles or pitchers by filling them with a solution of warm suds with about two tablespoons of vinegar added. Let them soak awhile. Then shake or swish the suds around, rinse and dry.

If a flower vase needs deodorizing, use a litle chlorine bleach in the rinse water.

Heavy, deep-cut crystal pieces deserve the best of care. A toothbrush dipped into suds will wash most frosted crystals, whether etched or cut. If dirt lodged in deep cuts resists even a brush, use a bit of well-lathered cotton on a toothpick to flick it out.

Dear Abby: by Abigail Van Buren

Help Her Now, Mother!

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter isn't even two yet out she is as smart as a whip. I can't even put my arms around my husband without her screaming and crying. And she doesn't stop until he shows HER some affection. She doesn't even want us in a room together without her. If she hears that he's in the house, she kicks up a fuss until he goes to her. How can we discourage jealously in a child her age? Or is it natural and harmless?

YOUNG MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It may be natural, but it's not harmless. Be sure the child gets plenty of affection (from both of you), but don't refrain from showing affection to one another in her presence for fear she'll have a tantrum. Let her know that Daddy loves Mamma, too, or you'll be shopping around for a psychiatrist with a junior-sized couch.

DEAR ABBY: While visiting some old friends of my husband's in his home town, one of the women said something about Albert's "second wife." I thought I was his second wife, but I didn't act surprised. Wren we got home I mentioned it to Albert and he said he never told me about his last two wives because they didn't play a very important part in his life. Wife Number Two, I later learned, was married to him for three years and Wife Number Three for nine! They both divorced him. I am Wife Number Four, but was told I was Wife Number Two. What would you do? I am beginning to wonder what kind of man I married. Can an annulment be effected 14 months after a marriage?

DECEIVED

DEAR DECEIVED: The length of time one has been married has no bearing on whether an annulment is possible in certain circumstances. See a lawyer for legal advice and talk to your clergyman for honest and intelligent counsel.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I want you to settle something. We were invited to the home of one of her bridge friends for dinner. Unfortunately the woman was a TERRIBLE cook. Her main course was a miserable, highly seasoned mess of something. I have a very sensitive stomach and one taste was enough for me. Meanwhile, my wife was looking daggers at me. When we got home she let me have it. She said I should have choked it down to spare the hostess' feelings. Was she right?

SENSITIVE STOMACH

DEAR SENSITIVE: You could have inconspicuously "rearranged" the mess a little and made a pretense of eating it. But I can't blame you for not choking it down. You might have choked, period.

How is the world treating you? For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

Mrs. DeLong Hosts Guild 12 Meeting

Mrs. Warren Harmon was a guest when Berger Hospital Guild No. 12 met recently in the home of Mrs. Eldon DeLong, Jefferson Addition.

Mrs. Robert Schmidt, chairman, conducted the business session. Mrs. Robert Bower reported that the guild had contributed toward the purchase of an Infanette for the hospital.

A family picnic for the group will be held August 13, at Edgewood Farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Poling.

You can use empty one-pound cans for baking nut-and-date or other quick breads and bake in a moderate oven about 45 minutes.

Italian Designers Prefer Soft Wools, Wide Shoulders

By LOUISE HICKMAN
Associated Press Fashion Writer

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—Striking designs in heavy soft wools and wide military shoulders were the latest word today from Italy's fall and winter high fashion showings.

The messages came from Schuberth and Lancetti, who unveiled their new collections at the Pitti Palace Monday night.

Schuberth tended to blanket his new lines under a cloud of accessories — bandana-wrapped calots, neck scarves, hankies in the hand, ribbon cockades, yard-wide hats with hem-length widows' veils and two-foot hair bows.

Underneath were some striking coats, suits and dresses.

Done in heavy soft wools, they featured front and back apron panels. There were lots of square patch pockets, thick cord belts and neckline edgings and soft shirred backs.

Straight skirts were lightly shirred.

Color pairings of orange and garnet, mustard and black, navy and gold, and brown and soft turquoise were stunning.

Soft coats and capes that were cut to jacket length in front were very special, worn over matching patch-pocketed dresses. A short sleeveless black wool sheath had a fringed floor-length apron panel that reached the ankles in front.

Lancetti did very wide military shoulders, often with epaulette pads, on a narrow silhouette. He opened with zebra and leopard coats.

Many gowns were flat, buttoned spirals of fabric. This scroll motif was continued in exaggerated, bow-like arrangements. There were a number of jutting sleeves that looked like vacuum cleaner bags clasped tight to the wrist.

50th Anniversary Celebrated by Local Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Rinehart, 820 Atwater Ave., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary yesterday with a quiet family dinner at their home.

Lime deposits can be removed from water bottles or pitchers by filling them with a solution of warm suds with about two tablespoons of vinegar added. Let them soak awhile. Then shake or swish the suds around, rinse and dry.

If a flower vase needs deodorizing, use a litle chlorine bleach in the rinse water.

Heavy, deep-cut crystal pieces deserve the best of care. A toothbrush dipped into suds will wash most frosted crystals, whether etched or cut. If dirt lodged in deep cuts resists even a brush, use a bit of well-lathered cotton on a toothpick to flick it out.

Dear Abby:

by Abigail Van Buren

Help Her Now, Mother!

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter isn't even two yet out she is as smart as a whip. I can't even put my arms around my husband without her screaming and crying. And she doesn't stop until he shows HER some affection. She doesn't even want us in a room together without her. If she hears that he's in the house, she kicks up a fuss until he goes to her. How can we discourage jealously in a child her age? Or is it natural and harmless?

YOUNG MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: It may be natural, but it's not harmless. Be sure the child gets plenty of affection (from both of you), but don't refrain from showing affection to one another in her presence for fear she'll have a tantrum. Let her know that Daddy loves Mamma, too, or you'll be shopping around for a psychiatrist with a junior-sized couch.

DEAR ABBY: While visiting some old friends of my husband's in his home town, one of the women said something about Albert's "second wife." I thought I was his second wife, but I didn't act surprised. Wren we got home I mentioned it to Albert and he said he never told me about his last two wives because they didn't play a very important part in his life. Wife Number Two, I later learned, was married to him for three years and Wife Number Three for nine! They both divorced him. I am Wife Number Four, but was told I was Wife Number Two. What would you do? I am beginning to wonder what kind of man I married. Can an annulment be effected 14 months after a marriage?

DECEIVED

DEAR DECEIVED: The length of time one has been married has no bearing on whether an annulment is possible in certain circumstances. See a lawyer for legal advice and talk to your clergyman for honest and intelligent counsel.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I want you to settle something. We were invited to the home of one of her bridge friends for dinner. Unfortunately the woman was a TERRIBLE cook. Her main course was a miserable, highly seasoned mess of something. I have a very sensitive stomach and one taste was enough for me. Meanwhile, my wife was looking daggers at me. When we got home she let me have it. She said I should have choked it down to spare the hostess' feelings. Was she right?

SENSITIVE STOMACH

DEAR SENSITIVE: You could have inconspicuously "rearranged" the mess a little and made a pretense of eating it. But I can't blame you for not choking it down. You might have choked, period.

How is the world treating you? For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

Mrs. DeLong Hosts Guild 12 Meeting

Mrs. Warren Harmon was a guest when Berger Hospital Guild No. 12 met recently in the home of Mrs. Eldon DeLong, Jefferson Addition.

Mrs. Robert Schmidt, chairman, conducted the business session. Mrs. Robert Bower reported that the guild had contributed toward the purchase of an Infanette for the hospital.

A family picnic for the group will be held August 13, at Edgewood Farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Poling.

You can use empty one-pound cans for baking nut-and-date or other quick breads and bake in a moderate oven about 45 minutes.

Italian Designers Prefer Soft Wools, Wide Shoulders

By LOUISE HICKMAN
Associated Press Fashion Writer

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—Striking designs in heavy soft wools and wide military shoulders were the latest word today from Italy's fall and winter high fashion showings.

Schuberth tended to blanket his new lines under a cloud of accessories — bandana-wrapped calots, neck scarves, hankies in the hand, ribbon cockades, yard-wide hats with hem-length widows' veils and two-foot hair bows.

Underneath were some striking coats, suits and dresses.

Done in heavy soft wools, they featured front and back apron panels. There were lots of square patch pockets, thick cord belts and neckline edgings and soft shirred backs.

Straight skirts were lightly shirred.

Color pairings of orange and garnet, mustard and black, navy and gold, and brown and soft turquoise were stunning.

Soft coats and capes that were cut to jacket length in front were very special, worn over matching patch-pocketed dresses. A short sleeveless black wool sheath had a fringed floor-length apron panel that reached the ankles in front.

Lancetti did very wide military shoulders, often with epaulette pads, on a narrow silhouette. He opened with zebra and leopard coats.

Many gowns were flat, buttoned spirals of fabric. This scroll motif was continued in exaggerated, bow-like arrangements. There were a number of jutting sleeves that looked like vacuum cleaner bags clasped tight to the wrist.

50th Anniversary Celebrated by Local Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Rinehart, 820 Atwater Ave., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary yesterday with a quiet family dinner at their home.

Eagleson 'Strip' Is Lovely Setting for Cape Cod Home

By MRS. ELIZABETH JONES

Mrs. J. O. Eagleson, 702 N. Pickaway St., laughingly denies that she has a garden. She calls it a strip. But it is a beautifully gardened strip bordered by yard-wide flower beds. The strip incidentally is 80 by 400 feet.

And it is a beautiful setting for the charming Cap Cod Eagleson home.

Mrs. Eagleson's gardening ability has kept right up with her gardening enthusiasm. The borders give evidence of excellent grooming and were perfectly weed free when I saw them.

Mrs. Eagleson happily explained that she had just finished her weeding chores.

THIS week Campsie Eagleson attended the 60th reunion of the class of 1902 of which she was a member. It was in high school that she fell in love with botany and her course at that time stood her in good stead for she is a fine amateur botanist.

The Eagleson yard is filled with fine big shrubs, many of them old fashioned. Campsie keeps these well under control with her trusty pruning shears.

The driveway circle is bordered with lilacs. There is plenty of mock orange. A fine specimen of sweet shrub grows along the fence. There are forsythias, viburnums, old fashioned snow ball, hydrangeas, kerria, and because Mrs. Eagleson loves the wildlings there are also elderberry, coral berry, and poke berry.

In front of the shrubs, Campsie has planted her flowers. She likes to keep her varieties together. So the peonies are in one spot. The violets are in a place allocated to them although they are anxious to go beyond their prescribed boundaries. The iris are togther and Mrs. Eagleson has both the old favorites and some of the newer varieties. She has a place for sundrops, a place for roses. She has about 25 roses not counting her fine climbers.

The Eaglesons are bounded on both sides by high growing trees on the neighboring properties. On the hospital grounds, wicked squirrels have planted a jungle of walnut tres which are shading the Eagleson flower beds and not improving the looks of the hospital grounds. Mrs. Eagleson is hoping the city will cut out some of this jungle. But she is going to tell them to leave the mulberry trees for the birds.

Oh, yes, this eager gardener is a bird lover of long standing. And as in her botanical studies she is also an authority on birds.

• • •

SINCE the Eagleson house is built close to the street, the backyard is quite long. Mrs. Eagleson has divided it into two sections. At the division line she had planted shrubs but she has left a space through which one can see the lower grass area which used to be ntirely an enormous vegatabl garden.

Campsie still has vegetables. She has tomatoes, beans and asparagus. These are in a long narrow row in the center of a beautifully kept lawn.

Mrs. Eagleson recalls that she did a great amount of canning for the family and sold $60 worth of vegetables to boot one summer. "But that", she confided, "was before we decided to tone down on the vegetable growing."

A long time member of the Pickaway County Garden Club, Campsie Eagleson is immensely popular with younger gardeners and very generous. Many shrubs in newer additions have come from the Eagleson garden.

Capsie says she hates to throw plants away. So she nurtures them in a little nursery section of her border. She has tiny viburnum shrubs and multiflora rose plants growing in rows in her border These she plans to give to the flower sale which Pickaway Garden Club holds each year at Pumpkin Show.

Mrs. Eagleson is successful in holding over four o'clocks from year to year. This is unusual in Ohio's climate. But Campsie mulches them deeply right along with her hardy begonias.

Mrs. Eagleson has watched one 11-year-old four o'clock plant with considerable amusement. This single plant has red, pink, red and yellow striped and yellow flowers on it.

• • •

MRS. EAGLESON suffered a broken hip six years ago. It laid her up for the time being and she feels that she never got caught up with her work.

But if you saw the Eagleson garden when I did you would agree that Mrs. Eagleson has caught up.

Chicago 1963 Flower Show Already Planned

Missing out on a summer vacation? Take the loss like a good sport and make plans to visit Chicago next March.

That's when the Chicago World Flower and Garden Show will take place. Plans are already under way to make it a grand event for visitors.

According to a release received this week the charm of a gay and romantic period in American culture will be recreated in the principal garden display of the 1963 Chicago World Flower and Garden Show.

An old southern mansion, its high - colonnaded veranda overlooking fragrant, blossom-bordering paths and gardens of jasmine, rhododendron, and magnolia, will dominate the huge spring spectacular in McCormick Place next March 16-24.

• • •

THE ante-bellum theme was disclosed by Managing Director Frank Dubinsky in the initial release of official plans for Chicago's 5th annual flower and garden extravanga. Said to be the nation's largest flower show, the exposition will spread over an expanded 230,000 sq. ft. in Chicago's lakefront exhibit hall.

Designed by landscape architect Harold Klopp, 1963 show plans call for thirty-six major gardens including a special display of the Flower Markets of the World.

Popularity of numerous features introduced in earlier shows has commanded repeat performances in 1963.

The tropical fish display by Chicagoland aquarists, the garden theatre for lectures, demonstrations, and films, and participation by outstanding choral groups will again add to the event's widespread appeal, as will the traditionally important sections on flower arrangements and horticulture.

Kennedy Stable Residents Roam

WEST BARNSTABLE, Mass. (AP) — Part of the Kennedy menagerie—a mare and three ponies—is back in the stable today after giving Barnstable police and volunteers a workout.

The ponies cavorted about the countryside for nearly three hours before police and nearby residents rounded them up.

Stall on Negro Leader Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stephen M. Young, DOhio, says many of his constituents are outraged that the Senate so far has failed to confirm the nomination of Thurgood Marshall to the federal bench.

Marshall, former counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, as nominated by President Kennedy to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last Oct. 23.

A Senate judiciary subcommittee headed by Sen. Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., has held two hearings but has taken no action.

In a Senate speech Tuesday Young said the nomination should be acted on soon "in the interest of decency and fair treatment." He said he has received many telegrams and letters from constituents expressing outrage that Marshall, a Negro, has not been confirmed.

Garden Gossip

Mrs. Frank Hawkes, E. Franklin St., reported that her hen-and-chickens was blooming. She has had her planting of this interesting succulent for over 20 years. (Her grandfather gave it to her) and this is the first year it ever bloomed to her knowledge.

When hen-and-chickens blooms it is a grotesque procedure. A long stem shoots out from the center of one of the plump hens. The insignificant flowers bloom at the end of the flower stalk.

Mrs. J. O. Eagleson is a composter. You've heard it said that behind every successful man there is a good woman. Well behind every successful garden there is a good compost heap.

Of all the interesting things to be seen at Pauline Schiff's the most fascinating was a plug-in telephone. I had never seen one except in the movies.

Mrs. Turney Pontius who visited the Schiff garden with me asked to use the telephone — Pauline Schiff just brought a white telephone and plugged it in the electric socket.

Corrilla Pontius called to say she had a couple of very lovely blue glads. We asked if they were really blue or a violet. She said to come and see.

They were a rare shade of lovely blue violet. I had not expected them to be a true blue. It is scientifically impossible for any one flower to come in the three primary shades of red, blue, yellow.

It has something to do with chromosomes. Some authorities say there will never be a blue rose for that reason.

Vangie Campbell, W. Franklin, received a letter from Buddy Greenlee, now stationed in Germany. He's the young man who created some of our loveliest Pumpkin Show floats. Young Greenlee says German roses are fabulous. They measure 10 inches across.

When we were getting the Briar Patch ready for the garden club picnic my husband decided to run over the place where we burn the trash with the brush-hog. I had a stack of magazines that refused to burn except the edges.

When the brush-hog hit the magazines it threw bits of paper fifty yards. You should have seen the back meadow! And you should have heard me!

Addie Young, Stella Ave., was telling about mowing grass one day when the mower hit a rock and hurled it through the picture window where the family was eating supper. The rock landed in the sugar bowl.

There have been several reports about the extraordinary size of zinnias this season.

The Dallas Elliots, Jefferson Place, have zinnias of rare size. The Elliotts are experienced flower growers and know a big zinnia when they see it.

Mrs. Raymond Moats says her sweetpeas are still blooming. According to Mrs. Moats sweet peas are generally spent by this season.

Dr. Joe Goeller had grown the glads, we understand, that were used as altar decoration at his daughter's wedding.

Mrs. Lloyd Petty, the best of good neighbors, brought a lovely bouquet of double gloriosa daisies for me the morning of the garden club picnic.

Mrs. Thedore Huston thought they were artificial — that is until she felt them and realized they were the real McCoy.

The Pettys were at a relatives' funeral the day of the garden club picnic. I had wanted my guests to stop at her garden on the way home. It's very colorful with many different flowers blooming.

Daylilies galore are blooming in Circleville gardens. Now is the time to learn about them. Visit a garden where the lilies are labeled.

Mrs. Donald Watt has such a garden — A day lily of rare color named Frovees Fay is causing considerable attention. It's a soft shade of apricot yellow. An enormous flower of excellent texture.

Mrs. James Moffit's garden on E. Franklin also has labeled varieties of daylilies. She has an extensive collection.

Mrs. Kelson Bowers has interesting day lilies.

In short the modern day lily has redeemed the July, August flower garden.

Time was when phlox and golden glow along with tiger lilies made up the flowers in the July-August gardens.

Free Handbook Available For Rosarians

A new booklet, describing in detail every phase of successful rose growing, has just been published by All-America Rose Selections and is available free to the public.

AARS, the national association of commercial garden rose plant growers, has prepared this new booklet, "A Handbook for Rose Growing", expressly to answer the rose grower's every question about his favorite garden pastime.

The handbook, 16 pages and in color, offers something for every reader, regardless of his past experience with the "Queen of flowers".

Newer enthusiasts will find particularly interesting the chapters explaining the various rose classes, selection of plants, proper planting steps and rose care.

• • •

MORE experienced rosarians will find a wealth of interesting material devoted to original garden displays and landscaping, and the extensive suggestions for putting the beauty of the cut rose blooms to use.

"A Handbook For Rose Growing" describes the rigid AARS system of selecting the truly superior rose for the All-American Rose honor, and lists by year every rose that has achieved the AARS award since the first honors were bestowed in 1940.

The new booklet was designed by AARS as a true handbook, both in content and size. Its handy 9-inch by 4-inch size makes it perfect for carrying in pocket or purse on trips to public gardens and rose displays.

"A Handbook For Rose Growing" may be obtained free by addressing a postcard to All-America Rose Selections, Public Information Office, 247 Park Avenu, New York 17, New York.

POTATO PLANT BEARING TOMATOES — Can this be? Mrs. Forrest Moss, 363 E. Corwin St., claims she has a "mutation." However, according to floriculturist, Bob Brehmer, the "tomato" is actually the seed pod of the potato and not a tomato. Mrs. Moss believes that all the potatoes would have seed pods instead of just one plant if this were true. She said her potatoes are separated from the tomatoes with a row of green beans. So far the green beans have kept to themselves and not entered the argument. (Staff Photo)

Mrs. Eagleson has watched one 11-year-old four o'clock plant with considerable amusement. This single plant has red, pink, red and yellow striped and yellow flowers on it.

* * *

MRS. EAGLESON suffered a broken hip six years ago. It laid her up for the time being and she feels that she never got caught up with her work.

But if you saw the Eagleson garden when I did you would agree that Mrs. Eagleson has caught up.

Stall on Negro Leader Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stephen M. Young, DOhio, says many of his constituents are outraged that the Senate so far has failed to confirm the nomination of Thurgood Marshall to the federal bench.

Marshall, former counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, as nominated by President Kennedy to the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last Oct. 23.

A Senate judiciary subcommittee headed by Sen. Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., has held two hearings but has taken no action.

In a Senate speech Tuesday Young said the nomination should be acted on soon "in the interest of decency and fair treatment." He said he has received many telegrams and letters from constituents expressing outrage that Marshall, a Negro, has not been confirmed.

Garden Gossip

Mrs. Frank Hawkes, E. Franklin St., reported that her hen-and-chickens was blooming. She has had her planting of this interesting succulent for over 20 years. (Her grandfather gave it to her) and this is the first year it ever bloomed to her knowledge.

Mrs. J. O. Eagleson is a composter. You've heard it said that behind every successful man there is a good woman. Well behind every successful garden there is a good compost heap.

Of all the interesting things to be seen at Pauline Schiff's the most fascinating was a plug-in telephone. I had never seen one except in the movies.

Mrs. Turney Pontius who visited the Schiff garden with me asked to use the telephone — Pauline Schiff just brought a white telephone and plugged it in the electric socket.

Corrilla Pontius called to say she had a couple of very lovely blue glads. We asked if they were really blue or a violet. She said to come and see.

They were a rare shade of lovely blue violet. I had not expected them to be a true blue. It is scientifically impossible for any one flower to come in the three primary shades of red, blue, yellow.

It has something to do with chromosomes. Some authorities say there will never be a blue rose for that reason.

Vangie Campbell, W. Franklin, received a letter from Buddy Greenlee, now stationed in Germany. He's the young man who created some of our loveliest Pumpkin Show floats. Young Greenlee says German roses are fabulous. They measure 10 inches across.

When we were getting the Briar Patch ready for the garden club picnic my husband decided to run over the place where we burn the trash with the brush-hog. I had a stack of magazines that refused to burn except the edges.

When the brush-hog hit the magazines it threw bits of paper fifty yards. You should have seen the back meadow! And you should have heard me!

Addie Young, Stella Ave., was telling about mowing grass one day when the mower hit a rock and hurled it through the picture window where the family was eating supper. The rock landed in the sugar bowl.

The Dallas Elliots, Jefferson Place, have zinnias of rare size. The Elliotts are experienced flower growers and know a big zinnia when they see it.

Mrs. Raymond Moats says her sweetpeas are still blooming. According to Mrs. Moats sweet peas are generally spent by this season.

Dr. Joe Goeller had grown the glads, we understand, that were used as altar decoration at his daughter's wedding.

Mrs. Lloyd Petty, the best of good neighbors, brought a lovely bouquet of double gloriosa daisies for me the morning of the garden club picnic.

Mrs. Thedore Huston thought they were artificial — that is until she felt them and realized they were the real McCoy.

The Pettys were at a relatives' funeral the day of the garden club picnic. I had wanted my guests to stop at her garden on the way home. It's very colorful with many different flowers blooming.

Daylilies galore are blooming in Circleville gardens. Now is the time to learn about them. Visit a garden where the lilies are labeled.

Mrs. James Moffit's garden on E. Franklin also has labeled varieties of daylilies. She has an extensive collection.

Mrs. Kelson Bowers has interesting day lilies.

In short the modern day lily has redeemed the July, August flower garden.

Time was when phlox and golden glow along with tiger lilies made up the flowers in the July-August gardens.

Free Handbook Available For Rosarians

A new booklet, describing in detail every phase of successful rose growing, has just been published by All-America Rose Selections and is available free to the public.

AARS, the national association of commercial garden rose plant growers, has prepared this new booklet, "A Handbook for Rose Growing", expressly to answer the rose grower's every question about his favorite garden pastime.

The handbook, 16 pages and in color, offers something for every reader, regardless of his past experience with the "Queen of flowers".

Newer enthusiasts will find particularly interesting the chapters explaining the various rose classes, selection of plants, proper planting steps and rose care.

* * *

MORE experienced rosarians will find a wealth of interesting material devoted to original garden displays and landscaping, and the extensive suggestions for putting the beauty of the cut rose blooms to use.

"A Handbook For Rose Growing" describes the rigid AARS system of selecting the truly superior rose for the All-American Rose honor, and lists by year every rose that has achieved the AARS award since the first honors were bestowed in 1940.

It also lists numerous addresses where garden enthusiasts can write for rose catalogues, gardening publications and films.

The new booklet was designed by AARS as a true handbook, both in content and size. Its handy 9-inch by 4-inch size makes it perfect for carrying in pocket or purse on trips to public gardens and rose displays.

"A Handbook For Rose Growing" may be obtained free by addressing a postcard to All-America Rose Selections, Public Information Office, 247 Park Avenu, New York 17, New York.

POTATO PLANT BEARING TOMATOES — Can this be? Mrs. Forrest Moss, 363 E. Corwin St., claims she has a "mutation." However, according to floriculturist, Bob Brehmer, the "tomato" is actually the seed pod of the potato and not a tomato. Mrs. Moss believes that all the potatoes would have seed pods instead of just one plant if this were true. She said her potatoes are separated from the tomatoes with a row of green beans. So far the green beans have kept to themselves and not entered the argument. (Staff Photo)

Chicago 1963 Flower Show Already Planned

Missing out on a summer vacation? Take the loss like a good sport and make plans to visit Chicago next March.

That's when the Chicago World Flower and Garden Show will take place. Plans are already under way to make it a grand event for visitors.

According to a release received this week the charm of a gay and romantic period in American culture will be recreated in the principal garden display of the 1963 Chicago World Flower and Garden Show.

An old southern mansion, its high - colonnaded veranda overlooking fragrant, blossom-bordering paths and gardens of jasmine, rhododendron, and magnolia, will dominate the huge spring spectacular in McCormick Place next March 16-24.

* * *

THE ante-bellum theme was disclosed by Managing Director Frank Dubinsky in the initial release of official plans for Chicago's 5th annual flower and garden extravanga. Said to be the nation's largest flower show, the exposition will spread over an expanded 230,000 sq. ft. in Chicago's lakefront exhibit hall.

Designed by landscape architect Harold Klopp, 1963 show plans call for thirty-six major gardens including a special display of the Flower Markets of the World.

Popularity of numerous features introduced in earlier shows has commanded repeat performances in 1963.

The tropical fish display by Chicagoland aquarists, the garden theatre for lectures, demonstrations, and films, and participation by outstanding choral groups will again add to the event's widespread appeal, as will the traditionally important sections on flower arrangements and horticulture.

Kennedy Stable Residents Roam

WEST BARNSTABLE, Mass. (AP) — Part of the Kennedy menagerie—a mare and three ponies —is back in the stable today after giving Barnstable police and volunteers a workout.

Clay Gives Views On Berlin War

Q. What sort of move on their part would bring a more serious reaction on our part — in other words, war?

A. You've got to differentiate between the moves to blockade Berlin and, by attrition, to cause it to fold up. The latter would require months of action and could be met, at least in its initial stages, with counter measures in the economic and blockade field. On the other hand if you have got a physical move into Berlin by either East German or Soviet troops, or by infiltration, if you've got the use of physical forces to stop Allied movements on the highways, then you would have a situation in which it would seem to be our response would almost have to be physical.

Q. As the President's personal representative in Berlin, did you have any difficulty reaching him, getting his ear?

A. None whatsoever. . . . Things which I considered important enough to go to the President I not only reached him quickly; I also had his support. . . .

Q. There were moments of such urgency that you did pick up the phone and call the President directly?

A. A few. There were not very many.

Q. Generally, you feel that you and the administration are in agreement on Berlin policy?

A. (long pause) Well, I would like to express it a little differently. The general policy of the administration and the commitments as expressed by the President to my mind represent a stand on the part of the United States of which we can be very proud and which if we maintain, will, I'm sure, save Berlin and Europe. Now I must explain right now that some of these commitments which we have made have not been made—at least not publicly—by all the members of the Alliance. I would hope that the views of the United States can be made to prevail in the Alliance. This is one of the things that is very difficult for our own people to understand. We have a position of our own. But we cannot break up the Alliance to maintain our position.

Q. In the areas where you did disagree with some of your colleagues on the Berlin situation, did it follow a pattern where generally you found yourself favoring stronger action or reaction than they did?

A. Well, I think it would be very difficult for me to say that it didn't follow that kind of pattern because it's too well known that my own views have beer that we must always take a strong stand in dealing with the Soviet government, a stand which they can understand and believe. Now this is to me essential to prevent war because unless we make them understand where they are going to be met with resistance, one of these days they're going to go too far and we're going to have no choice but war. Therefore I think we have to make them understand that any step they take over a special line—of course, this is getting down to a much clearer definition than actually exists—that it means.the're going to be met with force, that they can only cross that line by using force. If we can establish that understanding then I think war is most unlikely. I think that we have in our minds pretty well drawn that line. But I'm not too sure that the entire Allied organization accepts the same line.

Q. Is there any possibility of the wall coming down now short of meeting Moscow's demands?

A. No. I don't think so. If it did come down, there would be a mass migration from East Germany into West Germany. This is something that would destroy completely the Ulbricht regime and the East German economy.

Q. Looking far into the future, what do you think ultimately will be the status of Berlin?

A. Well, West Berlin has now lived for 17 years behind the Iron Curtain. Since 1947 it has lived in an atmosphere of a Communist regime. In that period, it has grown and prospered and become again a great city. It has been able to do this for 15 years. I see no reason why it shouldn't continue to live and prosper as a free city until there is a final solution even though it takes a great many years. Ultimately, it seems to me that with peace in the world there is certain to come a day when we have a reunified Germany, reunified in the new sense of a free and democratic Grmany as has developed in the Federal Republic. Now when and how this will come about is certainly something that I woud not want to prophesy. . . .

Aviation Plant Faces Strike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Joe White, United Auto Workers local international representative, said Wednesday some 35,000 union production workers at North American Aviation, including 6,000 at the Columbus plant, are scheduled to go on strike at noon next Monday if a new contract agreement is not reached by then.

White is a member of a three-man team from the Columbus local taking part in negotiations in Los Angeles. One of the principal bargaining issues in the negotiations is the union's demand for a full union shop.

White said he was pessimistic over prospects of an agreement before the deadline, but that the union would continue to negotiate until the last moment.

Baby-Feeding Idea Taken From Space

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Space Dividend

Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., ate from a plastic squeeze tube, squirting food into his mouth during orbit. Now, the same idea is being developed for no-mess, easy feeding of babies during travel by car or plane, or on picnics. Similar food tubes ae equipped with a clear , plastic, hollow-stemmed spoon attached to the tube.

Just the right amount of fruit, vegetable or other food can be squeezed into the spoon. A hermetic seal in the neck of the tube is punctured when the spoon is screwed onto the tube. Tube and spoon are disposed of afterward.

A baby food company is testing the squeze tubes, originally developed by the American Can Company for feeding astronauts under weightless conditions of space flight.

Medical Passports

To ensure proper emergency medical treatment at home or abroad, you can carry a medical passport listing essential information which a doctor or hospital should know about your own health. The pocket-sized document can contain data on treatment for a heart condition, for diabetes, epilepsy, or other disorders, as will as giving your blood type, allergies, and results of X-ray and laboratory studies.

Published by the Medical Passport Foundation, Inc., New York, the passports are provided to physicians and hospitals at cost.

Ag Secretary Raps GOP for Farm Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman said he has every intention of staying at his Cabinet job, despite embarrassing Estes case developments and farm-program setbacks in Congress.

Furthermore, he said he had no expectation that President Kennedy would ask him to resign.

Showing the confidence of a man who is on top of the world, Freeman, at a news conference, bitterly criticized congressional Republicans in connection with the recent House defeat of the administration's proposed farm controls program.

The secretary said that he has every intention of carrying the farm issue to the people—both those on the farm and in the city—in next fall's congressional election.

He blamed House defeat of the administration program on the Republicans who he said played the "narrowest, most partisan, bitter kind of politics." He charged the Republicans with inconsistency. He said that last year they opposed the current emergency feed-grain program, but now are "begging for it" for next year.

Crawford, Davis on Same Set but Not Feuding, They Say

All you have to do is sit on the set of "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?" and watch the sparks fly.

Crawford: I know, dear, and isn't it ridiculous? We're much too professional for anything like that.

Crawford: Of course.

Davis: (gaffaw) You know what the word is around New York? That the situation is so bad that your dressing room is on one end of the stage and mine is at the other end. Now I ask you, look at those dressing rooms! (They were about 20 feet apart, on each side of the big stage door.)

Crawford: You know the only reason I'm over there is that I like to be near the cooler. It's probably too cold for you.

Davis: Oh no! I adore it cold. I'm liable to move over there with you.

Davis: I'll tell you one thing I hope this picture does: I hope it brings back women's pictures. The men have had it to themselves too long. But I must admit, we women had it pretty good for 15 years back there.

Crawford: We sure did. But now everything is war and destruction on the screen.

Davis: Isn't it criminal what has happened to pictures? And to Hollywood! When I was here a year ago, I sat around with some old friends and we tried to think of something that would liven the town up, create some excitement. But we couldn't think of anything.

Crawford: There's just no life here at all. I'm not much of a set visitor, but I dropped in on the sets at a studio recently and everyone was just blah. No life, no spark.

Davis: Well, they handed this town over to the agents long ago. There's no direction any more. You remember how you and I used to find stories and go around to producers trying to work up enthusiasm? I wouldn't know who to go to nowadays.

Aviation Plant Faces Strike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Joe White, United Auto Workers local international representative, said Wednesday some 35,000 union production workers at North American Aviation, including 6,000 at the Columbus plant, are scheduled to go on strike at noon next Monday if a new contract agreement is not reached by then.

White is a member of a three-man team from the Columbus local taking part in negotiations in Los Angeles. One of the principal bargaining issues in the negotiations is the union's demand for a full union shop.

White said he was pessimistic over prospects of an agreement before the deadline, but that the union would continue to negotiate until the last moment.

Baby-Feeding Idea Taken From Space

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Space Dividend

Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., ate from a plastic squeeze tube, squirting food into his mouth during orbit. Now, the same idea is being developed for no-mess, easy feeding of babies during travel by car or plane, or on picnics. Similar food tubes ae equipped with a clear , plastic, hollow-stemmed spoon attached to the tube.

Just the right amount of fruit, vegetable or other food can be squeezed into the spoon. A hermetic seal in the neck of the tube is punctured when the spoon is screwed onto the tube. Tube and spoon are disposed of afterward.

A baby food company is testing the squeze tubes, originally developed by the American Can Company for feeding astronauts under weightless conditions of space flight.

Medical Passports

To ensure proper emergency medical treatment at home or abroad, you can carry a medical passport listing essential information which a doctor or hospital should know about your own health. The pocket-sized document can contain data on treatment for a heart condition, for diabetes, epilepsy, or other disorders, as will as giving your blood type, allergies, and results of X-ray and laboratory studies.

Published by the Medical Passport Foundation, Inc., New York, the passports are provided to physicians and hospitals at cost.

Ag Secretary Raps GOP for Farm Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman said he has every intention of staying at his Cabinet job, despite embarrassing Estes case developments and farm-program setbacks in Congress.

Furthermore, he said he had no expectation that President Kennedy would ask him to resign.

Showing the confidence of a man who is on top of the world, Freeman, at a news conference, bitterly criticized congressional Republicans in connection with the recent House defeat of the administration's proposed farm controls program.

The secretary said that he has every intention of carrying the farm issue to the people—both those on the farm and in the city—in next fall's congressional election.

He blamed House defeat of the administration program on the Republicans who he said played the "narrowest, most partisan, bitter kind of politics." He charged the Republicans with inconsistency. He said that last year they opposed the current emergency feed-grain program, but now are "begging for it" for next year.

Crawford, Davis on Same Set but Not Feuding, They Say

All you have to do is sit on the set of "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?" and watch the sparks fly.

Davis: Of course you know, Joan, that everybody is going to try to work up a feud between us.

Crawford: I know, dear, and isn't it ridiculous? We're much too professional for anything like that.

Crawford: Of course.

Davis: (gaffaw) You know what the word is around New York? That the situation is so bad that your dressing room is on one end of the stage and mine is at the other end. Now I ask you, look at those dressing rooms! (They were about 20 feet apart, on each side of the big stage door.)

Crawford: You know the only reason I'm over there is that I like to be near the cooler. It's probably too cold for you.

Davis: Oh no! I adore it cold. I'm liable to move over there with you.

Davis: I'll tell you one thing I hope this picture does: I hope it brings back women's pictures. The men have had it to themselves too long. But I must admit, we women had it pretty good for 15 years back there.

Crawford: We sure did. But now everything is war and destruction on the screen.

Davis: Isn't it criminal what has happened to pictures? And to Hollywood! When I was here a year ago, I sat around with some old friends and we tried to think of something that would liven the town up, create some excitement. But we couldn't think of anything.

Crawford: There's just no life here at all. I'm not much of a set visitor, but I dropped in on the sets at a studio recently and everyone was just blah. No life, no spark.

Davis: Well, they handed this town over to the agents long ago. There's no direction any more. You remember how you and I used to find stories and go around to producers trying to work up enthusiasm? I wouldn't know who to go to nowadays.

Crawford: I wouldn't either, There's no authority here at all. You take a script to a producer and the office boy reads it.

Intentional Walk Helps Dodger Cause

Los Angeles Defeats Redlegs in Hair-Raiser On Long-Shot Gamble

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Never, say the baseball purists. Well, almost never, says Los Angeles Dodger Manager Walter Alston. But when the guy has already hit two home runs . . .

Anyway, Alston ordered Gordie Coleman walked in the 11th inning of a hair-raiser Wednesday night against the Cincinnati Reds, with the tying run on second base. The move paid off in a 6-5 victory when Marty Keough bounced into a forceout.

The win padded the Dodgers' lead in the National League to two games over the San Francisco Giants, who managed only two hits—both by Chuck Hiller—off Milwaukee's Bob Shaw and lost 6-0.

Cincinnati Manager Fred Hutchinson wished his hurlers had never pitched to Frank Howard. The lumbering outfielder hammered a two-run two-out homer in the ninth to tie the score and bashed another in the 11th for the two clinching runs. They nullified Coleman's two homers.

In other National League action the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Houston Colts 6-2 and the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1 as Bob Gibson pitched his third straight three-hitter.

In the American League, the New York Yankees bombed the Boston Red Sox 12-4 to hold their 3½ game edge over the Los Angeles Angels, who beat the Detroit Tigers 5-0. Minnesota teed off for 11 runs in the first inning and beat the Cleveland Indians 14-3, Washington topped the Chicago White Sox 1-0 behind Bennie Daniels and Kansas City cooled off the Baltimore Orioles 3-2.

The Braves jumped on Juan Marichal for two in the first on Lee Maye's homer and added three in the third and one in the eighth off bonus rookie Bob Garbuldi.

Gibson, who ran his record to 12-6, lost his second consecutive shutout when Billy Williams homered in the fourth. The big righthander struck out 12.

The Cards got both their runs off rookie Carl Koonce, who threw a one-hitter in his first outing, in the fourth on a bases loaded double by Ken Boyer.

A five-run first inning off starter Bob Bruce was all the Phillies needed for their 11th straight win over Houston, which has now lost 21 of its last 24 games. Dallas Green set down the Colts with six hits.

Golfing

with ALEX MORRISON
Teacher of Champions

ARNOLD PALMER'S run of success depends largely on his handling of conflicts in the Palmer mental and physical processes. The rugged Pennsylvanian knows that he favors certain swing essentials and slights others.

His head position consistently is the best among the tournament pros. The finish of his swing is something else.

Repeatedly I have urged him to complete his follow through with his arms and club in the proper plane. Arnold would like to do this, but like most golfers during a successful run, figures that certain efforts to swing more correctly might easily upset the combination serving nicely at present.

Palmer, like most pros, fears a duck hook or wild pull that comes from an early or excessive forward rotation of body, arms or hands.

As a hedge against this, Arnold uses a "blocking action" to push his hands and club through the bottom of the swing. Under similar circumstances this type of action was adopted by Ben Hogan.

This was the beginning of a decline in Hogan's swing.

Blind Kid Baseballer May Get Sight Back

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—Nine-year-old Billy Bradley Jr. of El Dorado was blinded when struck by lightning while he was playing baseball.

That was 2½ months ago.

Now he has hopes of regaining his sight. The El Dorado News-Times has asked for contributions to a proposed $3,000 fund to pay for two operations for the boy.

His doctors say Bill will be able to see if the cataracts which formed over his seared eyes are removed.

Donovan Set To Aid Tribe Regain Form

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)—Slump, depression, nosedive or foldup. Call it what you will, but Dick Donovan is the raft on which the Cleveland Indians must cling to escape from the quicksand of defeats which they are battling.

Donovan (12-3) has been the stopper every time the Indians have been in trouble this season—and they're in real trouble now. The ace right-hander took Cleveland out of a five-game losing spell July 2 with a two-hitter that beat Baltimore 2-0. He's scheduled to face the Twins' Jim Kaat (8-9) today.

Minnesota handed Cleveland its sixth straight loss Wednesday, 14-3. The game was decided in the first inning when the Twins scored 11 runs and set a major league record by hitting two grand slam homers—by Bob Allison and Harmon Killebrew. Earl Battey also homered in that big initial inning.

To rub it in even more, former Tribe hurler Dick Stigman (4-2) pitched a six-hitter. He surrendered a two-run homer to John Romano, his 15th, and to Gene Green, his seventh.

Barry Latman (4-6) started for the Tribe and faced six men. He didn't get anybody out and gave up six runs, including the grand slammer to Allison. Jim Perry pitched the next seven innings and was tagged for 11 hits and 8 runs.

Cleveland now has lost eight of its last nine games and is seven games behind league-leading New York in the lost column. The Indians are in a virtual tie with Minnesota for third place 5½ games behind the Yanks.

Boner Costs Redlegs Win To Dodgers

CINCINNATI (AP) — It only takes one mistake to bring disaster when you play the pennant-hungry Los Angeles Dodgers.

Cincinnati's Redlegs learned that bitter lesson Wednesday night in the Dodger's 6-5 victory in 11 innings.

Dodger manager Walt Alston said the key play for his crew was in the same inning when the Reds put two men on base. Jim Gilliam at second converted Gordie Coleman's viciously-hit ball into a double play.

Lefty Jim O'Toole, waging an uphill battle this year to get on the winning side of the record, was the loser.

Drugsters Drop Fourteenth Game

Bob Walisa paced the 16-hit Elk attack with three doubles and three runs. Jack Boyer, and Bob Liston each socked a double and a single and Forrest Brown and John Wills also banged doubles. Nickey Wickerham and Steve Swank garnered two singles apiece.

Harry Robinson and Phil Miller were the big guns for Bingman's. Robinson socked three singles and scored three runs and Miller tripled and doubled. Kenneth Henn and Jim Campbell hit singles.

The Elks record now stands at 7-6 and Bingman's has an 0-14 mark.

Forfeit Win Gives Ashville 2nd Round Tie

The scheduled second round makeup game had been postponed twice previously. By virtue of the forfeit Ashville goes into a two way major loop tie with Dupont for first place in the second round.

Ashville and DuPont will meet in a playoff tilt to determine the winner of the second round, according to Lee Smith, secretary of the Circleville Youth Baseball Program.

Ashville	4	1
Dupont	4	1
G.E.	3	2
Kiwanis	3	2
L. M. Butch	1	4
Lindsey Bakery	0	5

Australian Grabs French Golf Prize

PARIS (AP) — A new international golfing star may have been uncovered in the French Open Championship.

Alan Murray, an Australian who is only 22, won the open Wednesday with final rounds of 69 and 68, for a 14-under-par total of 274 for 72 holes.

Trotters Eye $105,422 Yonkers Test

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — The eighth and richest Yonkers Futurity will be raced over 1 1-16 miles at Yonkers Raceway tonight with nine 3-year-old trotters, one a highly regarded filly, seeking the major share of the $105,422 purse.

All of the sport's top 3-year-old trotters, with the exception of the 1961 juvenile champ, Impish, are in this first event of the division's triple crown. The Hambletonian at Du Quoin, Ill., Aug. 29 and the Kentucky Futurity at Lexington, Ky., Oct. 5 complete the triad. The winner tonight will get 50 per cent of the total purse.

A.C.'s Viking has been installed the 8-5 choice largely off his recent straight victory in the Historic Dickerson Cup at Goshen, N.Y. The son of Hoot Mon, a rangy speedster, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew C. Peterson of West Hartford, Conn., and will be reined by 62-year-old Sanders Russell.

Freese's Big Bat Remains Silenced

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Manager Fred Hutchinson is resigned to the fact there is little chance of getting help this year from the booming bat of injured third baseman Gene Freese.

Freese still has hopes, however, of seeing some action with the Reds, currently fifth in the National League.

Lehigh beat Penn State, 106 to 0, in an 1889 football game. In 1920 the Nittany Lions avenged the setback, winning 109 to 7.

Top Palmer Foes Picked

Littler, Nicklaus, Casper Given Chance

NEWTON SQUARE, Pa. (AP)—You can't pick any one player to beat Arnold Palmer in the 44th Professional Golfers' Association championship, starting today over the hilly Aronimink course just outside Philadelphia. But one canny observer figures he can name three and one of them might pick up that valuable prize.

Harold Sargent, honorary president of the PGA, probably should be listed as a member of Arnie's Army, the excited, shoving, obviously partisan crowd that turns out every time the Latrobe, Pa., muscle man hits a defenseless little white ball. He's definitely a Palmer enthusiast, but he assesses Palmer's chances this way:

"If you didn't have a great player like Palmer around, you'd realize what great golfers Billy Casper and Gene Littler are. Give me three picks and I'd name them and Jack Nicklaus as having chances to beat Palmer."

At that, Sargent is giving himself the edge on the listed odds, which name Palmer as a 2-1 favorite with U.S. Open champion Nicklaus a 3-1 second choice. South Africa's Gary Player is fourth at 5-1 with Casper 6-1 and Littler 10-1.

Palmer and Nicklaus, two of the longest clouters in the game, were paired today for the first round of the 72-hole tournament over 7,045-yard, par 35-35—70 Aronimink, a course that seems made to order for the big hitters.

Neither will say so, but they obviously are looking at the PGA as a personal duel—with the realization that a dozen or so others in the field of 171 could slip in ahead of them.

Columbus Jets Beat Atlanta

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The way he's going with the Toronto Maple Leafs in the International League, it won't be long before young Dennis Menke is back with the Milwaukee Braves.

The bonus infielder has played 17 games since Milwaukee shipped him to Toronto for more seasoning. In that time, he's hit at a .322 clip, with 19 hits in 59 at-bats, has nine extra base hits, six doubles and three home runs. He's driven in nine runs.

Menke rapped three of those 19 hits Wednesday night, including a pair of doubles, as the Leafs beat Rochester 6-4 in 10 innings.

In other action, the Columbus Jets defeated Atlanta 6-4 and Buffalo outslugged Syracuse 12 - 7. Jacksonville and Richmond were rained out.

A two-run double by Ron Brand and a three-run, 450-foot homer by Don Clendenn were the big blows for Columbus against Atlanta. Al Pehanick won the game.

Intentional Walk Helps Dodger Cause

Los Angeles Defeats Redlegs in Hair-Raiser On Long-Shot Gamble

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When do you put the winning run on base intentionally?

Never, say the baseball purists. Well, almost never, says Los Angeles Dodger Manager Walter Alston. But when the guy has already hit two home runs . . .

Anyway, Alston ordered Gordie Coleman walked in the 11th inning of a hair-raiser Wednesday night against the Cincinnati Reds, with the tying run on second base. The move paid off in a 6-5 victory when Marty Keough bounced into a forceout.

The win padded the Dodgers' lead in the National League to two games over the San Francisco Giants, who managed only two hits—both by Chuck Hiller — off Milwaukee's Bob Shaw and lost 6-0.

Cincinnati Manager Fred Hutchinson wished his hurlers had never pitched to Frank Howard. The lumbering outfielder hammered a two-run two-out homer in the ninth to tie the score and bashed another in the 11th for the two clinching runs. They nullified Coleman's two homers.

In other National League action the Philadelphia Phillies whipped the Houston Colts 6-2 and the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1 as Bob Gibson pitched his third straight three-hitter.

In the American League, the New York Yankees bombed the Boston Red Sox 12-4 to hold their 3½ game edge over the Los Angeles Angels, who beat the Detroit Tigers 5-0. Minnesota teed off for 11 runs in the first inning and beat the Cleveland Indians 14-3, Washington topped the Chicago White Sox 1-0 behind Bennie Daniels and Kansas City cooled off the Baltimore Orioles 3-2.

The Braves jumped on Juan Marichal for two in the first on Lee Maye's homer and added three in the third and one in the eighth off bonus rookie Bob Garbuldi.

Gibson, who ran his record to 12-6, lost his second consecutive shutout when Billy Williams homered in the fourth. The big right-hander struck out 12.

A five-run first inning off starter Bob Bruce was all the Phillies needed for their 11th straight win over Houston, which has now lost 21 of its last 24 games. Dallas Green set down the Colts with six hits.

Golfing

with ALEX MORRISON
Teacher of Champions

ARNOLD PALMER'S run of success depends largely on his handling of conflicts in the Palmer mental and physical processes. The rugged Pennsylvanian knows that he favors certain swing essentials and slights others.

His head position consistently is the best among the tournament pros. The finish of his swing is something else.

Repeatedly I have urged him to complete his follow through with arms and club in the proper plane. Arnold would like to do this, but like most golfers during a successful run, figures that certain efforts to swing more correctly might easily upset the combination serving nicely at present.

Palmer, like most pros, fears a duck hook or wild pull that comes from an early or excessive forward rotation of body, arms or hands.

As a hedge against this, Arnold uses a "blocking action" to steer his hands and club through the bottom of the swing. Under similar circumstances this type of action was adopted by Ben Hogan.

Australian Grabs French Golf Prize

PARIS (AP) — A new international golfing star may have been uncovered in the French Open Championship.

Alan Murray, an Australian who is only 22, won the open Wednesday with final rounds of 69 and 68, for a 14-under-par total of 274 for 72 holes.

Forfeit Win Gives Ashville 2nd Round Tie

The scheduled second round makeup game had been postponed twice previously. By virtue of the forfeit Ashville goes into a two way major loop tie with Dupont for first place in the second round.

Ashville and DuPont will meet in a playoff tilt to determine the winner of the second round, according to Lee Smith, secretary of the Circleville Youth Baseball Program.

Ashville	4	1
Dupont	4	1
G.E.	3	2
Kiwanis	3	2
L. M. Butch	1	4
Lindsey Bakery	0	5

Stonerock TV Slated In District Tourney

The Stonerock TV softball team is scheduled to play in the District 8 fast pitch softball tournament 7:15 p. m. tomorrow at Chillicothe.

Trotters Eye $105,422 Yonkers Test

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — The eighth and richest Yonkers Futurity will be raced over 1 1-16 miles at Yonkers Raceway tonight with nine 3-year-old trotters, one a highly regarded filly, seeking the major share of the $105,422 purse.

All of the sport's top 3-year-old trotters, with the exception of the 1961 juvenile champ, Impish, are in this first event of the division's triple crown. The Hambletonian at Du Quoin, Ill., Aug. 29 and the Kentucky Futurity at Lexington, Ky., Oct. 5 complete the triad. The winner tonight will get 50 per cent of the total purse.

A.C.'s Viking has been installed the 8-5 choice largely off his recent straight victory in the Historic Dickerson Cup at Goshen, N.Y. The son of Hoot Mon, a rangy speedster, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew C. Peterson of West Hartford, Conn., and will be reined by 62-year-old Sanders Russell.

Freese's Big Bat Remains Silenced

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Manager Fred Hutchinson is resigned to the fact there is little chance of getting help this year from the booming bat of injured third baseman Gene Freese.

Freese still has hopes, however, of seeing some action with the Reds, currently fifth in the National League.

Freese, who has been on the disabled list since March 18, suffered a broken right ankle in an intra-squad spring training game in Tampa, Fla., on March 5.

Lehigh beat Penn State, 106 to 0, in an 1889 football game. In 1920 the Nittany Lions avenged the setback, winning 109 to 7.

Top Palmer Foes Picked

Littler, Nicklaus, Casper Given Chance

NEWTON SQUARE, Pa. (AP) —You can't pick any one player to beat Arnold Palmer in the 44th Professional Golfers' Association championship, starting today over the hilly Aronimink course just outside Philadelphia. But one canny observer figures he can name three and one of them might pick up that valuable prize.

Harold Sargent, honorary president of the PGA, probably should be listed as a member of Arnie's Army, the excited, shoving, obviously partisan crowd that turns out every time the Latrobe, Pa., muscle man hits a defenseless little white ball. He's definitely a Palmer enthusiast, but he assesses Palmer's chances this way:

"If you didn't have a great player like Palmer around, you'd realize what great golfers Billy Casper and Gene Littler are. Give me three picks and I'd name them and Jack Nicklaus as having chances to beat Palmer."

At that, Sargent is giving himself the edge on the listed odds, which name Palmer as a 2-1 favorite with U.S. Open champion Nicklaus a 3-1 second choice. South Africa's Gary Player is third at 5-1 with Casper 6-1 and Littler 10-1.

Palmer and Nicklaus, two of the longest clouters in the game, were paired today for the first round of the 72-hole tournament over 7,045-yard, par 35-35—70 Aronimink, a course that seems made to order for the big hitters.

Neither will say so, but they obviously are looking at the PGA as a personal duel—with the realization that a dozen or so others in the field of 171 could slip in ahead of them.

Columbus Jets Beat Atlanta

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The way he's going with the Toronto Maple Leafs in the International League, it won't be long before young Dennis Menke is back with the Milwaukee Braves.

The bonus infielder has played 17 games since Milwaukee shipped him to Toronto for more aessoning. In that time, he's hit at a .322 clip, with 19 hits in 59 at-bats, and has nine extra base hits, six doubles and three home runs. He's driven in nine runs.

Menke rapped three of those 19 hits Wednesday night, including a pair of doubles, as the Leafs beat Rochester 6-4 in 10 innings.

In other action, the Columbus Jets defeated Atlanta 6-4 and Buffalo outslugged Syracuse 12 - 7. Jacksonville and Richmond were rained out.

A two-run double by Ron Brand and a three-run, 450-foot homer by Don Clendenn were the big blows for Columbus against Atlanta. Al Pehanick won his third game.

The Big Ten is in its 67th year and is the oldest continuous collegiate athletic conference in the nation.

State Parks Use Is on Increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohioans are making extensive and intensive use of the state parks.

During the 1961 season a record total of 20,648,956 persons—more than double the state's population—visited the various recreation V. W. Flickinger, chief of the parks division, observed:

"This increase will not be good news to those who are finding crowded conditions right now during the vacation season. No new parks were opened last year, so the 10 per cent gain over the previous season's attendance was counted at existing facilities. The continued climb of park visitors means more and more crowding here in Ohio."

While last year's increase of 2,038,721 was termed substantial by park officials, the upward curve actually slackened somewhat. In 1960 there was a growth of almost 3 million as 18,610,235 visitors were counted.

For the fiscal year ended in 1950, the year the parks division was established, estimated annual attendance was 3,500,000.

Financed jointly by the Cincinnati Public Recreation Commission and the Ohio Division of Watercraft, the $63,000 project is scheduled at the Walter Schmidt Recreation Area adjacent to the Ohio River in the eastern section of the city. The state division is picking up two-thirds of the expense tab.

The four months ended June 30 constituted a drought period with an average rainfall deficiency of 5.09 inches, the Ohio Division of Water reported today. The June deficiency was 2.09 inches.

Hydrologist Paul Kaser said the most serious drought in recent years was in the 1952-54 period when the deficiency for the corresponding four months was 1.83 inches, and the driest four-month span was 5.84 inches. Thus the current period was almost as dry as the driest four months of what was a really serious drought.

Bill Enzle, Auglaize County game protector, said his surveys show more rabbits in his area than have been noted for several years. Quail population also is up, and pheasants unchanged.

Small northern pike, which normally feed only on minnows, subsisted on crayfish when a minnow shortage hit the St. Marys hatchery — proving some young fish can change normal feeding habits in times of stress.

Resthaven wildlife area in Erie County, long a popular hunting ground, is getting attention now in fishing circles. Cecil Woodall of Clyde recently caught a 5-pound 2-ounce largemouth bass in the area's Big Dike pond. Some 3,000 northern pike fingerlings were stocked in the same pond this year.

Two barrels, erected as Canada goose nesting places at the Killdeer Plains wildlife area near Findlay, were taken over by mallard and wood ducks which raised families in them.

Lake Erie commercial fishermen landed 3,500,000 pounds of various species during April, five per cent above the same month in 1961. Carp accounted for most of the increase.

Thus the current period was almost as dry as the driest four months of what was a really serious drought.

From here and there:

Bill Enzle, Auglaize County game protector, said his surveys show more rabbits in his area than have been noted for several years. Quail population also is up, and pheasants unchanged.

Small northern pike, which normally feed only on minnows, subsisted on crayfish when a minnow shortage hit the St. Marys hatchery — proving some young fish can change normal feeding habits in times of stress.

Resthaven wildlife area in Erie County, long a popular hunting ground, is getting attention now in fishing circles. Cecil Woodall of Clyde recently caught a 5-pound 2-ounce largemouth bass in the area's Big Dike pond. Some 3,000 northern pike fingerlings were stocked in the same pond this year.

Two barrels, erected as Canada goose nesting places at the Killdeer Plains wildlife area near Findlay, were taken over by mallard and wood ducks which raised families in them.

Test-netting operations at Ferguson Reservoir, the 305 acre spot near Lima, showed a fine population of largemouth bass, bluegills, perch and brown bullheads—along with some 15-inch walleyes.

Lake Erie commercial fishermen landed 3,500,000 pounds of various species during April, five per cent above the same month in 1961. Carp accounted for most of the increase.

AC&Y Seeks Absorption By N&W Line

WASHINGTON (AP) —H. B. Stewart Jr. says that the Akron, Canton & Youngstown Railroad would benefit if it were controlled by the Norfolk & Western Railway.

Stewart, son of the road's founder and chairman and chief executive officer of the AC&Y, made the statement in testimony prepared for the opening of an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing on a proposal for N&W control of his railroad.

The plan, calling for N&W purchase of all outstanding ACY stock, would be "a good three-way transaction — not only an excellent one for the public and the N&W, but likewise a fine one for AC&Y stockholders," Stewart said.

Stuart T. Sanders, N&W president, said he hoped the ICC would issue its decision on the stock-control plan "at or about the same time" it decides a pending case on the proposed merger of N&W, Nickel Plate and Wabash railroads.

An ICC hearing on that case ended May 2, but the commission has been urged by opponents to withhold a decision until it also completes consideration on two other big consolidations. One of these would unite the Pennsylvania and the New York Central railroads, and the other would join the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Baltimore & Ohio.

Fire Hoses Quell Rioting In Akron Jail

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—High pressure streams of water from two hoses were turned on prisoners in the maximum security range at Summit County Jail for more than 15 minutes before a disturbance was brought to an end early today, deputies reported.

The disturbance started shortly after 10 Wednesday night. Jailer Charles Bell investigated and found that a prisoner, Frank Carpenter, 27, had been beaten, apparently by three or four other prisoners in an open area outside the individual cells.

Carpenter was removed for questioning, but when deputy George Buca tried to get the other prisoners to go to their individual cells the prisoners were defiant.

Sheriff Robert Campbell and his deputies tried unsuccessfully to persuade the prisoners to go to their cells before calling in the fire department.

Cause of the disturbance and the reason for the beating given Carpentr were not known immediately. Carpenter was in jail on charges of driving with a suspended license and reckless operation. Deputies said he was in the maximum security range because he was a parolee from a previous felony sentence.

DiSalle Off On New Leg Of Campaign

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. Michael V. DiSalle hit the campaign trail today for the second time this week.

His itinerary included stops in Madison, Champaign, Union, Logan and Hardin counties. He was to attend a luncheon at Marysville, a "Governor's Day" rally at Russells Point and a dinner at Kenton.

DiSalle was in his Statehouse office Wednesday after a two-day re-election campaign tour in Southern Ohio.

The governor answered a variety of questions at a news conference, one of them dealing with the Edythe Klumpp murder case. DiSalle told newsmen it appeared to him that any further inquiry into the highly-publicized case is stymied for the present.

DiSalle commuted the death sentence of the Cincinnati woman, convicted in the slaying of a love rival, 18 months ago, saying he was convinced of her innocence.

He said Wednesday: "Many of these things you can feel, but you have to have supporting evidence."

Wilmington College Student Takes Scooter Trip out West

Bob Law, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Law, Route 1, set out this week on an 8,000-mile motor scooter trip which will run for seven weeks and will include a visit to the Seattle World's Fair.

Law is traveling on a German-made scooter which runs about 70 miles to a gallon of gasoline (making the operating cost about one-half cent per mile or approximately $40 for gas and oil for the entire trip.)

Th adventurer, who is studying biology at Wilmington College is particularly interested in visiting national parks and mountains along the way. An amateur photographer, he will take his camera along to capture the scenic beauties of the West. He also intends to collect insects for a friend in Circleville.

Law plans to live on a fruit and vegetable dit, spending about one dollar per day for food. He will sleep in the open in a sleeping bag.

* * *

EQUIPMENT will be kept to the bare essentials, including wash and wear clothing, rain suits and a two-burner stove. The rain suit will also serve as a windbreaker. explains Bob, since riding on a scooter at 50 miles per hour and 50 degrees temperature has a cooling effect many degrees below zro.

Included in his intinerary will be the national parks of Yellowstone and Grand Teton in Wyoming; Yosemite and Sequoia in California; Grand Canyon in Arizona; Mesa Verde in Colorado and Olympic in Washington. He will also visit Mt. Rushmore in South Dakota. After a stop at the World's Fair, he expects to be back in Wilmington by August 30.

The college student has scootered to distant points before, though this will be his longest trip. Last Easter vacation he traveled through the Smoky Mountains and in the fall he and another friend visited Minnesota and Iowa enroute to the Young Friends Committee of North America conference at Paynesville, Minn.

Bob Law, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Law, Route 1, set out this week on an 8,000-mile motor scooter trip which will run for seven weeks and will include a visit to the Seattle World's Fair.

Law is traveling on a German-made scooter which runs about 70 miles to a gallon of gasoline (making the operating cost about one-half cent per mile or approximately $40 for gas and oil for the entire trip.)

Th adventurer, who is studying biology at Wilmington College is particularly interested in visiting national parks and mountains along the way. An amateur photographer, he will take his camera along to capture the scenic beauties of the West. He also intends to collect insects for a friend in Circleville.

Law plans to live on a fruit and vegetable dit, spending about one dollar per day for food. He will sleep in the open in a sleeping bag.

EQUIPMENT will be kept to the bare essentials, including wash and wear clothing, rain suits and a two-burner stove. The rain suit will also serve as a windbreaker. explains Bob, since riding on a scooter at 50 miles per hour and 50 degrees temperature has a cooling effect many degrees below zro.

Included in his intinerary will be the national parks of Yellowstone and Grand Teton in Wyoming; Yosemite and Sequoia in California; Grand Canyon in Arizona; Mesa Verde in Colorado and Olympic in Washington. He will also visit Mt. Rushmore in South Dakota. After a stop at the World's Fair, he expects to be back in Wilmington by August 30.

The college student has scootered to distant points before, though this will be his longest trip. Last Easter vacation he traveled through the Smoky Mountains and in the fall he and another friend visited Minnesota and Iowa enroute to the Young Friends Committee of North America conference at Paynesville, Minn.
